Economists Of Nation Expect Increase In Production

DEMAND FOR NECESSITIES BEING FELT

Production in Some Industries Far Below Actual Needs of Country

U. P. MAKES SURVEY

Pickup in Steel Industry During Latter Part of This Year is Predicted

NEW YORK, July 13.—(UP)—Production in many of America's leading industries has dropped to such a low level, that experts predict an "automatic" production increase to meet the demand for necessities, the United Press learned today.

Production in some industries is far below the actual needs of the American people as computed on the basis of consumption over the past 10 years.

If Americans hold their recently acquired "necessities"—the family automobile, the electrical refrigerator and the radio—economists insist that the upturn in business cannot be far away.

Sociologists are equally insistent that the people will maintain those articles that were once classified as "luxuries."

Activity in all major industries in the first half of this year was well below what was necessary to keep the American people supplied with essentials on the scale of the post war period. Greater recessions were forced in some smaller industries, notably radio and railroad equipment. Electrical refrigeration, food, cosmetics and tobacco suffered less than the average. The importation of oil industry has not been affected recently.

Among the larger industries in which the deflation has gone to extremes are building and steel. The automobile industry is hit severely because many car owners are driving their machines several additional years instead of junking them. The same is true of the radio industry.

An economist of F. W. Dodge corporation, building analysts, states that costs of homes are too high for current incomes and that some revolutionary idea that the low-cost steel home might cause a sweeping change in conditions and lead to greater activity in the building industry.

J. P. Morgan, former chairman of the United States Steel corporation in his annual report for 1931 said:

"It seems reasonable to suppose that on the basis of average demands in the United States for steel products during the past 10 years, the requirements of this country for maintenance and current uses alone, exclusive of development and expansion, should call for steel products in considerably greater tonnage than was consumed in 1931."

According to the trade publication, "Steel," the current apparent under-production is not tantamount to underconsumption. Using the June, 1932, production as a basis, this authority states that steel ingot production is the lowest since 1909, adequate only for a population 40 percent below today and an average minus automobiles, radios, mechanical

President To Be Notified Next Month

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(UP)—President Hoover will be formally notified of his re-nomination as Republican presidential candidate early in August, according to present plans of house Republican leader Snell.

Snell, permanent chairman of the party convention in Chicago, is charged with the duty of carrying out the notification ceremonies.

"Nothing is definite yet," Snell said, "but I believe the ceremonies will be held at the White House some time between the 5th and 10th of August."

Snell said the president would not go to Palo Alto, Calif., to make his acceptance speech.

VETS CAMP ON CAPITOL LAWN DURING NIGHT

Famous Mr. Zero of New York Sends Army 17,000 Pounds of Beans

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(UP)—The siege of the United States Capitol by veterans determined to bivouac on the Capitol grounds until Congress adjourns was strengthened today by reinforcements from the main camp of the bonus expeditionary force.

Several hundred veterans from Oregon, headed by a bugle and drum corps and marching briskly, moved into the Capitol area as a meager breakfast of weak coffee, bread and "hot dogs" was ladled out to the 700 men who had spent the night on the pavements and lawns about the Capitol building.

The Capitol's sprinkler system was put in operation early and the men who had slept on the lawns were forced to retire to the pavements of the street between the Capitol and the Library of Congress. The veterans were warned in advance so none of them was drenched as the sprinklers watered the broad lawn in the rear of the Capitol.

The breakfast, which appeared to be far short of the quantity necessary to feed all the men on the Capitol grounds, was brought up from the downtown camp of the California contingent. It was handed out as the men stood quietly in

NEW FRENCH TARIFF WOULD HIT AMERICA

PARIS, July 13.—(UP)—New tariffs on importation of fresh fruit which would seriously damage the United States export trade with France, valued at $10,000,000 a year, were being considered today by the ministry of agriculture.

The official journal announced import quotas on fruit, established for July, do not allot a quota to the United States as the United States does not export fruit in July. However, it was explained the quota is merely a temporary measure to restrain imports until a higher fruit tariff can be passed by parliament.

The tariff will be at least double the present rate, it was understood. French fruit growers are backing the measure, as they backed the decree against the San Jose scale, which proved ineffective at keeping out United States fruit.

STATE EMPLOYEES TO TAKE WAGE SLASH

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 13.—(UP)—A sliding scale of pay reductions for California state employees went into effect today in place of the 5-day week ordered by Governor Rolph effective July 1st.

The compromise plan was accepted after a thorough discussion was had by Governor Rolph, the other elective officials of state government and representatives of the state Employees' association. A saving of approximately $1,800,000 a year will result from the new wage cut.

GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE IN ECONOMIC PACT

Four Point Accords Announced by Foreign Minister to Commons

LONDON, July 13.—(UP)—A cordial agreement between Great Britain and France on outstanding economic problems was announced in the House of Commons today by Sir John Simon, foreign secretary.

It is a four point accord designed "to promote the spirit of cooperation of Lausanne." It provides:

- 1.—Exchange of views with one another in complete candor and friendship, keeping each other mutually informed on any question affecting the European situation.
- 2.—Working together with other delegates to find a disarmament solution beneficial and equitable to all powers concerned.
- 3.—Cooperation with one another and with other interested governments in careful, practical preparation for the world economic conference.
- 4.—Pending negotiation at a later date of a new Anglo-French commercial treaty, the two powers will avoid action of a nature to discriminate against each other's interests.

"This declaration," Sir John said emphatically, "is in no sense and at no point a special or exclusive declaration. I have seen the representatives of Germany, Italy and Belgium, handed them copies and extended to them an invitation to associate themselves with the declaration."

"We will endeavor to promote the political appeasement of Europe by open and friendly discussion," Sir John added. It was officially explained that the agreement does not refer either explicitly or implicitly to war debts due the United States and has no connection whatever with them.

The procedure was understood to be devised for the handling of political questions not decided at Lausanne, including possible revision of the Versailles treaty.

POLL LEGISLATURE ON EXTRA SESSION

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 13.—(UP)—Members of the California state legislature were being polled by Governor Rolph today to determine their attitude on the proposed special session to put in effect a statewide water development program.

Telegrams were sent to the 80 assemblymen and 40 senators asking an immediate reply to the following question:

- "Will you support any or all three of these proposals:
1. A constitutional amendment providing general authority for the water program.
2. A statute creating a permanent water commission to administer the plan.
3. A bond act providing $160,000,000 for the Central valley unit of the water program."

ARMED REVOLT IN ECUADOR REPORTED

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, July 13.—(UP)—An armed revolt against the government broke out in Ecuador today. At Loja, General Cordova rebelled with his battalion and proclaimed Colonel Luis Larrea Alba dictator. Colonel Aquilino Vasconez, chief of the military zone of Cuenca left there today for Loja, to put down the movement.

In Quito, Colonel Larrea Alba, alleged leader of the movement; Commander Bolivar Valdivieso Alba, and other officers were arrested. The movement apparently had no repercussion in other places.

Gold Rush Is Staged In Truckee Area

TRUCKEE, Calif., July 13.—(UP)—The gold rush of 49 was being re-enacted near Lake Tahoe today following reports that one had been found on the Chambers' resort property which tested $20 a ton.

Two hundred claims had been staked out today in the stampede to obtain choice claims before guards went on duty to protect the property. Inasmuch as the resort company owns all mineral rights it appeared likely that most of the claim stakers would be forced to withdraw.

AIMEE HUTTON IN RELAPSE AT ELSINORE HOME

Physician Says Condition is Serious and Recovery is Delayed

LOS ANGELES, July 13.—(UP)—Mrs. Aimee Temple McPherson Hutton was in a serious condition today following a relapse, according to her physician, Dr. Edward Huntington Williams.

Ill in bed at her Moorish castle at Lake Elsinore, the evangelist suffered two severe nasal hemorrhages and lapsed into a coma last night, the physician said.

Her condition was attributed to striking her head when she fainted Saturday upon being informed Mrs. St. Pierre had obtained a $5000 bond of promise verdict against her husband, David L. Hutton.

Dr. Williams said she was in "no apparent danger" today, but that she would be confined to her bed for several more weeks. "Mrs. Hutton suffered a severe concussion when she swooned last Saturday," said Dr. Williams, "and her relapse was directly attributable to that."

The evangelist's condition was aggravated by worry over the tangled affairs of Angelus temple, of which she is the head. Reported irregularities in the management of the temple community led Mrs. Hutton to demand a thorough investigation by the city social service commission. Friends said she was directing a thorough reorganization of temple affairs.

The reorganization was said to have nothing to do with a reported split among temple followers over David L. "Iron Man" Hutton.

Among the charges of mismanagement attributed to community heads was one that solicitors for the charitable organization were permitted to sell

PUBLIC NOT IN FAVOR OF CUT IN WAR DEBTS

Administration Convinced Sentiment Opposed to Any Reduction

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(UP)—The administration is convinced that congressional and public sentiment is strongly opposed now to even one penny's reduction in Europe's $11,000,000,000 war debts.

Latest evidence of this spirit is senatorial reaction to reports from London, later modified, that American envoys gave quiet assurance that the United States would treat its debtors liberally if they forgave German reparations. Senator Johnson, Rep., Calif., bitterly attacked the administration's debt policy. He especially denounced secret negotiations.

Secretary of State Stimson denied the debtors had been given any assurances. He insisted the administration's war debt policy was unchanged. This policy, briefly, is "no cancellation, and collection to the extent of capacity to pay."

Yet many administration leaders are convinced that the war debt system, like reparations, is built on sand. Many of them doubt that few countries will pay the 1932-33 debt installments totaling $270,000,000. And many more are sure the grandchildren of present day Europeans are not going to pay for a war that their forefathers fought. The debt payments run for 50 more years.

The belief is growing in some administration quarters that settlement of the debt question may depend on disarmament.

State department and White House have denied repeatedly that American diplomats are trying to trade gold for sunken European battleships and disbanded regiments. Such a trade, one official said, would be an insult to the debtor nations.

But the relation seen by some officials between disarmament and war debts is through American public opinion. They believe that the average American shares Senator Borah's view that if Europe can spend billions on battleships, artillery and soldiers it can pay millions on war debts.

The president is understood to hold a similar view.

If, therefore, the nations of Europe, when they resume the general disarmament conference at Geneva next fall, are willing really to reduce their arms, officials believe the American public revision.

Senator Johnson, who fought the one year moratorium tooth and nail last December, shared the view that the coming debt installments will not be paid. "They will be met by another moratorium," he protested, "and the $270,000,000 added to the burden on the backs of the American

Buoyancy Is Evident In All Issues

Bank Stocks, Grains, Steel and Farm Equipments Move Skyward

NEW YORK, July 13.—(UP)—Prospect of early adjournment of congress provided stimulus for a smart advance of the stock market today. Prices were carried up fractions to more than 3 points with best levels achieved near the close.

After a brief early decline, the day was marked by absence of liquidation and return of investment and speculative buying on a slightly increased volume of transactions.

Such favorable factors market-wise as a strong bond market were accompanied by a hint from the bond pool that the present was the time to buy bonds; a rise of 3-8 to 5-8 cents a bushel in wheat and more than a cent in corn; higher cotton prices; increased steel production; a fair showing in the weekly report on electricity output; relatively favorable oil statistics and a decline in the number of business failures.

Bank stocks joined the advance with substantial gains. For a time in the morning Auburn automobile at 48 acted as a drag on the general market. It rallied later in the last few minutes of trading touching a high for the day at 54 1-4 where it was up 1 7-8 points net.

J. I. Case led a sharp upturn in the farm equipment shares. Higher steel production helped U. S. Steel common to cross 23 and the preferred to cross 55, against respective previous closing levels of 22 1-2 and 55 1-8.

American Can rose nearly 2 points; National Biscuit more than 2. Allied Chemical was in good demand. The electric equipment issues made recoveries.

Standard of New Jersey led the oils into higher ground. American Telephone spurted nearly 3 points to above 74 after an early dip to 71 3-8. Communication stocks and bonds generally were firm. Western Union ignored its report for the six months ended June 30 showing net income of only $16,949, against $4,382,756 in the corresponding 1931 period. Gas and Electric utilities rose under the lead of Consolidated Gas and Public Service of New Jersey.

Railroad shares joined the advance. Atchafalpa and Union Pacific were up a point each and others made smaller gains. Proctor and Gamble and Continental Can ignored dividend reductions.

SLAYER SAVED FROM DEATH ON GALLOWS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 13.—(UP)—Ray West, Sacramento youth convicted of the murder of Jean Burr, laundryman, will not die on the gallows at San Quentin prison for the crime Friday morning.

Governor Rolph, in commuting the sentence from death to life imprisonment late yesterday, specified that the prisoner must spend his remaining days behind prison bars, and must never be paroled or released.

AMELIA EARHART IN NEWARK THIS NOON

NEWARK, N. J., July 13.—(UP)—Amelia Earhart Putnam, who soared off from the Pacific coast at 5:11 p. m. EDT, yesterday, spanned the continent successfully by plane and reached Newark airport at 12:17 p. m. EDT, today.

She had been forced to alight at Columbus this morning to get more fuel, thereby shattering her hope for a nonstop trip. The elapsed time was 19 hours and 6 minutes, she thereby failing to set a new record for the coast to coast journey.

'Ma' Kennedy's Problem Returns Home

HERMOSA BEACH, Calif., July 13.—(UP)—The economic problem of "Ma" Minnie Kennedy Hudson was back in her little yellow cottage by the sea today.

Last Friday "Ma" gave her "What-a-man" husband, Guy E. Hudson, $10 and put him on a northbound train at Santa Barbara in search of a job, lack of which had caused a rift in their domestic happiness.

Tired and hungry, dust on his shoes, "what-a-man" trudged up the hill to "Ma's" cottage yesterday, the $10 presumably spent and no job in sight.

"Ma" gave him some lunch. "What-a-man" ate in silence.

COMPROMISE ACCEPTABLE TO HOOVER

Similar Measure Passed by Senate Last Night and Conference to Follow

BINGHAM IS DEFEATED

Connecticut Senator Asks Senate Reconsider Its Vote But is Overruled

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(UP)—The new draft of the $2,122,000,000 unemployment relief bill was passed by the house today with record breaking legislative speed.

The senate passed a similar measure last night and a speedy compromise was expected. This will produce a measure acceptable to President Hoover, who vetoed the original bill.

Just as the unemployment relief bill was called up for action in the house today, Senator Bingham, Rep., Conn., moved to reconsider the vote last night by which the $2,122,000,000 measure was passed in the senate.

Bingham challenged the $222,000,000 public works appropriation in the bill as extravagant.

Bingham cited the fact that the bill was sponsored in the senate by four Democrats, Senators Wagner, N. Y., Pittman, Nev., Walsh, Mass., and Buckley, Ohio, and added that the measure proposed to spend as much for public works as had been saved this session by cutting appropriations.

He recalled that the Democratic platform pledged "eliminating extravagance to accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of federal government."

"The leaders of the Democratic party in the senate," Bingham continued, "have by their urgency in jamming through their so-called relief bill last night, undone all the work we have been trying to do in an effort to balance the budget and reduce governmental expenditures. Their platform calls for immediate and drastic reduction. Their actions last night, which I hope will be reconsidered, today, call for extravagance in federal aid for road construction and other extravagances to the tune of many millions of dollars."

Minority Leader Robinson moved the Bingham motion be laid on the table, an action tantamount to killing it. The motion passed 60 to 10.

TWO FLIERS FORCED TO ABANDON PLANE

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Cal., July 13.—(UP)—Two national guardsmen owed their lives today to cool headed use of their parachutes when an army training airplane became jammed over the national guard summer camp here.

Lt. Charles Haas and Private R. H. Ebner leaped to safety from an altitude of 4000 feet when a wing tore loose from the fuselage of their ship.

WILL ROGERS SAYS:

BEVERLY HILLS, July 13.

(To the Editor of The Register: Say, the more you read of that bill for relief that the President vetoed, the more you can see he was right. It was going to loan money to individuals. Now it's right to have the government feed and help get jobs, but to loan everybody money that needs it to pay off somebody else that they owe, well, in the words of my old friends, the two Black Crows, "You can't do that." Besides borrowing from one fellow to pay another one don't do any good. Just keep on owing the same fellow, he has got used to "carrying" us by now. In other words let's don't change creditors while crossing a stream.

Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

However, a thing this congress ought not to allow."

The silver-haired Californian shouted to the senate:

"It's time there should be some sort of warning by those who think this government belongs to one people—the American people."

"I cry out against one thing more than anything else. I cry out against secrecy—secrecy about a thing that concerns every taxpayer. It ought not to be tolerated. We've reached the place where every nation on the face of the earth expects cancellation, and we have reached it because we began with secretism."

Unemployed Will Meet Today; Plan Reception Friday

Action on the proposed new by-laws for the Unemployed association of Santa Ana is scheduled to be taken at a meeting at association headquarters in the old Willard school building at Tenth and Main streets tonight and all members of the association are urged to be present by the officers.

Plans to the public for fruit jars and clothing for use in the commissary department were made by Thomas A. Broderick, chairman of the board of directors, again today. He reported that donations which have been made are greatly appreciated, but that there is still need for additional supplies.

An open house to the public is planned for next Friday evening from 7:30 to 10 a.m. at headquarters to show the work of the association in all phases.

ARRAIGN WM. TERRY ON ASSAULT CHARGE

William Terry, of 1374 Santiago street, arrested Monday on a charge of assaulting Major Anderson Jr. and also charged with firing a weapon in the city of Santa Ana, pleaded not guilty to both charges before Judge J. C. Mitchell in city court yesterday.

He was released on his own recognizance following the hearing and trial in both cases was set for July 19 at 10 a.m.

Terry is the man who is reported to have shot and killed two highly blooded dogs owned by C. F. Carter, of 705 East Seventeenth street, an uncle of Major Anderson Jr. When the youth went to the Terry home to find out why the dogs were killed, Terry is alleged to have assaulted him by kicking him in the side and hitting him with a rake.

line. More food was due later for the Oregon men.

Urban Ledoux, the famous "Mr. Zero" of Manhattan headlines, told the veterans he had obtained 15,000 pounds of beans. He said 15,000 pounds additional had been arranged for and were on the way from New York by truck, accompanied by a guard of Michigan veterans "to keep them from being hi-jacked by our enemies."

Standing countless on the basin of an ornate but dry fountain, shaking his long gray hair and mopping his forehead with a handkerchief, the men to stay in their Capitol camp.

"Success is just about here," he shouted. "You felt it in the grass last night, and you felt it in the stone steps yesterday. Keep it up and you'll get your bonus."

Roy Petrie, red headed marine commanding the Oregon division, which joined the California army yesterday and rejoined today after a night at their barracks, said:

"Our idea is a peaceful rebellion to prevent a bloody revolution. Those fellows in Congress there have never been among men who are hungry. If they had, they would see our point."

Petrie told his men the mess bugle would be assembly call.

"There might not be any food, but come around when you hear it," he said.

POULTRYMEN WILL MEET IN SAN DIEGO

Orange county members of the Farm Bureau poultry department are planning to attend a regional conference of delegates of the five southern counties in the state which will be held Friday in San Diego, it was announced today by W. M. Cory, assistant farm adviser.

While the local representatives are in San Diego they will inspect the pathological laboratory and study the operation of the San Diego Poultry Producers' association.

Those who plan to attend the meeting are I. E. Heving, W. C. Childers, S. J. Kelly, Glen Wells, H. A. Reiman and W. M. Cory. Childers, who lives in Santa Ana, is chairman of the state poultry department and will make a report on the activities of the state group at the regional conference.

Mexican Held On Burglary Charge

Francisco Casillas, Los Alamitos Mexican, charged with being one of the burglars who broke into the Watts store several months ago, at which time several hundreds of dollars worth of merchandise was stolen, was held to answer to the superior court today on a burglary charge.

He was given a preliminary examination in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court. Bail of $300 was demanded which was not made.

Among the articles testified found at the Casillas home as having been taken from the store was 20 pounds of bologna sausage.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind the News

WASHINGTON
By Paul Mallon

TACTICS
Democrats got a few political flies mixed up in their beer. They used every available means of evading the issue in the Senate.

That was the real reason why the Coughens Home Mortgage plan was adopted as a substitute for the Administration bill. Democrats voted for it, thinking it would automatically rule the Bingham beer amendment out of order.

Later they found out their mistake, but then Senator Borah came to their rescue. He offered the Glass inflation bill as a substitute for Bingham's beer so the timid Senators could vote on that instead of on 22 per cent foam.

Inside reasons for the Democratic stand were multitudinous. The beer proposal came from a Republican source. The electorate had not yet passed on the Democratic platform. Many dry Democratic Senators were unwilling to switch yet merely because the party adopted that platform. They wanted to wait to see how their states took it.

The President himself would have vetoed the bill and therefore it could not have become a law.

The big thing was they did not like the idea of the Republicans stealing their thunder.

Wet Democrats counseled the party leaders to start the beer thing separately from the House and push it through to a vote. That would make a political record.

The House leadership stepped on the idea early.

Immediately they started agitation for adjournment of Congress. They knew they could not long avoid votes on the prohibition issue if Congress remained in session.

PRESS
C. Roosevelt will be the first Democratic presidential candidate in many years to have a good press. Inside arrangements for it are now under way.

That is highly important. The chief complaint of Democrats has been that the press of the country is largely Republican. They howled that they could not get their side of campaign stories told. That was the leading reason for establishment of a first class Democratic publicity bureau here three years ago.

This time the Hearst papers are understood to have placed themselves at Roosevelt's disposal. They are said to be willing to cooperate in any way the Roosevelt managers think best.

The powerful New York Times will soon endorse the candidate wholeheartedly. It is very influential in banking, business and scholastic circles. The normal Democratic press is being held without defections.

In addition, there is good reason to believe one of the Washington Administration newspapers will drop its support of the President and espouse the independent or independent Democratic cause early in the fall. The way for that is now being privately cleared.

ELECTION
The private early claims of the Roosevelt adherents are certainly lavish. They really believe they will win by a landslide. They predict they will carry 40 out of the 48 states.

The truth is the Presidency may be won and lost a dozen times before November. No one can have the faintest worthwhile notion yet how it will come out. Improvement in business might change things materially.

There has been some cloakroom criticism against Roosevelt for starting so early. Old heads pointed out Bryan was twice elected in July only to lose out on election day.

INFLATION
Senator Borah's thrust for the Glass inflation bill was only a political maneuver.

The plan of inflating the currency directly through national bank notes has many more adherents now than when Senator Glass originally proposed it. Favor for some method of lifting the currency has been spreading rapidly on the inside. However, there was no chance for its adoption. The President and the Treasury stood in the way.

Borah used it merely as part of his unflinching covert filibuster to delay adjournment of Congress, as well as to block a beer vote.

NOTES
The nomination of W. W. Upshaw as the dry candidate for President pleased the Republican and Democratic leaders. . . . They figure Upshaw will poll less than the nominal protest vote of about 200,000. . . . Upshaw's big battle will be against the Communist William Z. Foster to see who gets the booby prize. . . . The dry camp is an old honorarium man for the Anti-Saloon League, honorarium being a nice word for salary paid to hired speakers. . . . Borah's idea of holding that third party in readiness for a possible merger with a Progressive movement was a pure stall. . . . The Progressive Third Party idea died when Roosevelt was nominated. . . . It may frighten the President into being drier in his acceptance speech. . . . That is supposed to be Borah's main purpose now.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin
GERMAN BONDS
Much of the recent optimistic activity in German bonds can be traced to purchasing orders from Holland. There is reason to believe that a good share of them are "bootleg" orders from German sources. Germany evidently had advance inside dope about Lausanne.

STOCK MARKET
There has been some quiet covering by well-posted foreign shorts in the New York Stock Market lately. Some of the accounts covered run back two years and more. Some observers interpret this optimistically on the ground that Europeans seem to know our prospects better than we do.

New York Central's resistance to further decline at a price between 11 and 12 is attributed in some quarters to this foreign covering.

There has been quite a bit of evasion of the new short selling tax since it went into effect. If purchasers are willing to co-operate, shorts can simply "fail to deliver." Then no tax needs to be paid. Treasury authorities are trying to find a way to circumvent this system.

The widely publicized plan to establish minimum prices for securities on the ground that they no longer reflect true values got nothing but a derisive laugh from Wall street. Even granting his premises they cannot see any practical way of applying such a restriction. It is ironic that on the day his statement was published the stock of his own company—Underwood Elliott Fisher—made a new low.

STOCK EXCHANGE
A member of the New York Stock Exchange who is letting his seat cool while he visits his home in the West for the summer now writes that if he is "offered" a job in one of the banks or trust companies in his city he will take it.

Some Stock Exchange members are critical of the "unofficial" method used by governors to discourage short selling. Governors have watched the limited number of active bears on the floor trading for their own account. When one of them got busy a governor would tap him on the shoulder and say, "You're not helping things very much" or "I saw that" until the traders began to feel like criminals.

Some traders were not officially expelled but were given about 24 hours to sell their seats. This is supposed to be a "nice" way of handling such matters. Comment has been heard from traders that Chicago is not the only place where people are "put on the spot."

STOCKHOLDERS
U. S. Steel's gain of $700 stockholders since last year—practically all holding a hundred shares or less of stock—gives point to the fact that large companies are trying to increase the number of stockholders.

Companies like U. S. Steel and the larger railroads and that they gain instability of management through having their stock widely distributed. There is less chance of upsetting the management if no one shareholder owns more than a very small percentage of the stock outstanding.

Companies such as General Motors and General Foods find that their sales are directly stimulated by small stockholders.

Utility companies have no objection to the political influence arising from the self-interest of thousands of small stockholders. Copyright, 1932, McClure Newspaper's Syn.

AIMEE HUTTON IN RELEASE AT ELSINORE HOME

plies, donated for the poor, and convert the proceeds to their own use.

In support of this allegation, it became known today that a detective of the police department had conferred with Robert Edward Fisher, 70, a commissary collector.

Fisher was said to have admitted selling a quantity of sauerkraut and two cases of salad dressing which had been donated to the commissary, but assertedly declared that the foodstuffs had been given him in exchange for services.

Fisher was to appear before the social service commission today.

Reports that Roy E. Watkins, Hutton's subpoena server in the breach of promise suit, had been asked to resign were not confirmed. Watkins, a stormy petrel in Angelus temple circles recently, was censured in superior court for asserting having attempted to barter time on the temple radio for commissary donations.

Speed made a trip recently into the back country, covering territory that is not in the common lines of travel, making many pictures, both moving and still, which he used in the course of his talk. Among the interesting scenes he showed were some of Zion and Bryce canyons and scenes around the Hoover dam site.

Pictures of the Valley of Fire and Snow canyon, two localities seldom visited, were shown, as well as some of the most beautiful caves known.

Those present declared it was a most enjoyable viewing and expressed appreciation of the lecture.

THIEF STEALS $16 AT PARTY HERE

Police last night were called to investigate the theft of $16 which disappeared from the pocketbook of Mrs. E. C. Read, of 811 South Flower street, yesterday afternoon while she was attending a party at the home of Mrs. J. H. Turton of 1325 Martha Lane.

There were 38 women at the party, but none of the other purses were robbed. Police searched for footprints outside the windows of the house, but were unable to find any. Police are of the opinion that the thief "ashed" the purse from a bed through the window, robbed it and then replaced the purse.

Escaped Prisoners Are Sought Here

Santa Ana police and sheriff's officers were today searching this county and city for two prisoners who late last night escaped from a deputy sheriff at San Diego.

The men are both former convicts, one with a record of having been to the penitentiary five times, the other three times. They are Hubert H. Crutcher, 42, and Roy Miller, 30.

INCREASE IN INDUSTRY IS ALMOST SURE

local refrigerators, steel furniture and pipe lines.

Because conditions in these major industries, steel and building, are so far below normal, economists believe that any sizable pickup in activity would put millions of men back to work. Such a development would immediately spread to allied lines and bolster industry in general by increasing the purchasing power of so many people.

FINED $300 ON BOOZE COUNT
John Flynn, 22, arrested here Saturday night when Santa Ana police raided a house on East Walnut street and found a small quantity of whiskey and beer, pleaded guilty to possession of liquor in the Santa Ana police court yesterday and was fined $300. He was unable to pay the fine and so was committed to the county jail to serve one day for each two dollars fine levied.

A WORD OF COMFORT

Do not be deceived by the cynicism and hopelessness of modern plays and novels and poetry and art. They merely voice the emptiness of a false philosophy which has ignored God's presence in His world. Look at them as the logical conclusion of those who have made mistaken assumptions and followed them consistently. For yourself, look at the beauty of nature and the splendid idealism evidenced in the lives of men and women, and reach out for a touch with the God who creates and fosters these. In your heart of hearts you know that God is, that He loves you and that He has ordained that you shall spend eternity with your dearest one.

LEGION BAND DRUM CORPS TO PARTICIPATE

When Newport Beach's Big Tournament of Lights is staged in Newport Bay Saturday night, Santa Ana will be well represented by two floats representing the city and sponsored by the Santa Ana post of the American Legion will be in line, it was announced today by Rodney Bacon, post commander, who is in charge.
Plans were completed yesterday afternoon for the entry of the Santa Ana floats, on one of which will be the newly acquired Santa Ana American Legion Post band of 35 pieces under the direction of Ted Collins, and on the other, the Santa Ana American Legion Drum Corps.

At a special meeting of the executive committee of the Santa Ana post, held Monday night, the former Moose band, which was heard at the Irvine park on July 4, was formally taken over as the post band and in the future will be known as the Santa Ana American Legion band. Said to be one of the best bands in this part of the state, its addition to the post is expected to be one of the biggest assets the post has. The band is the only one entered in the parade, it is reported.

The drum corps will number 45 men for the Newport Bay pageant and was announced.
Santa Ana persons were today congratulating the Santa Ana post for the initiative in placing two city of Santa Ana floats in the tournament and praising the post for the work it has accomplished.

OUTDOOR PUPPET SHOW IS ENJOYED

ORANGE, July 13.—A dinner party followed by an outdoor puppet show was given recently in the home of Miss Mary Bowyer, this city, in honor of Bob Bromley and Ray Smith, managers of the Olvera Puppets.

The dinner was served at 7 o'clock, with all appointments carried out in a black and amber motif. Tallmen roses in a black bowl centered the table, lighted with black candles in amber holders. Amber glassware and nut cups further emphasized the striking color theme.
Guests at the dinner were Mr. Bromley and Mr. Smith and Miss Ruth Hilyard, of Orange; Miss Leone Baxter, of Santa Ana; Miss Lois Rees and Victor Rees, of Anaheim, and Frank Close, of San Diego, and the hostess, Miss Bowyer.

In greeting 35 additional guests who arrived at 8:30 o'clock to witness the puppet show, Miss Bowyer was assisted by her sister and their mother, Miss Doris Bowyer and Mrs. C. M. Bowyer. The puppet show was given by the hostess, with Miss Leone Baxter and Miss Lois Rees assisting.
The show included a song, "The Minuet," a play, "The Moon for a Prince," and a Negro skit, "The Watermill Thief." Following the production, guests were permitted to see behind the portable stage. Its large curtains were of old-fashioned black and white calico, while the draw curtains were of crazy quilt design. Tiny Japanese lanterns and stage lights as well were used in lighting.
Throughout the evening, orange juice and cakes were served.

COMMUNITY PARTY STAGED BY LEGION

BREA, July 13.—At the community entertainment of the American Legion post Tuesday evening, all amusements were well attended. Tommy McGrew, general chairman, reported that the Legion of Brea supplied 236 tickets to the plunge to young people during the afternoon. The games, in charge of Dr. Glenn Curtis, Dr. J. J. Holland and James Leach, resulted in a score of 23-15 by Dr. Crenshaw's team against Eddie Brainer's at baseball. Those serving the supper which followed the ball game were Lester Slaughter, Earl Doty, J. Mathews, Louis Stumbo, Roy Nelson and C. W. Gray.
The Anaheim Bugle and Drum corps gave a drill. E. M. McDonnell served as the finance committee. Boy Scouts were on duty.

The final event of the evening was a dance which was well attended.

PROPRIETOR OF BEER GARDEN GOES TO JAIL

Raiding the home of Ralph Hernandez Alby at 375 1-2 North Cypress street in Orange last night, officers found six Santa Ana and Orange young people sitting at tables drinking beer. Thirty-one quarts of beer were found in the house.

Alby appeared before Judge A. W. Swayze this morning and was sentenced to spend 100 days in jail or pay a fine of $200. He declined to go to jail.

According to Chief of Police B. P. Richards, who with Officers Homer Davis and James Johnson, made the raid, the young people were warned that if they were again caught in a beer parlor, they would be arrested along with the proprietor.

Three of the young men at the Alby home were from Santa Ana and two were from Orange, while the sixth member of the party was a young Orange woman.

GUILTY VERDICT RETURNED IN MURDER CASE

Deliberating but 45 minutes, a jury which heard evidence in the case of Jose Antolin who was charged with murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Eugenio Herrera, Mexican laborer in "Little Tijuana" camp on the Bastanchury ranch on May 8, returned a verdict of guilty of manslaughter last evening. The jury went out at 4:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon and returned at 5:15 o'clock after the trial which has lasted two days.

Judge G. K. Scovel, in whose department in superior court the case was tried, will pronounce judgment against Antolin Friday at 2 p. m.
In his closing argument, Deputy District Attorney S. R. Kaufman evidently convinced the jury that Antolin had fired the shots that ended in the death of the Mexican. Antolin has a bullet in his right leg which entered from the inner thigh and which fractured the right leg below. Kaufman claimed that Antolin had accidentally shot himself in the leg as he was firing from the hip at Herrera. The last shot which struck the dead man was fired when he was down on the floor of the cabin. Three eye witnesses who saw part of the shooting testified that the shots had come from Antolin.

On the witness stand, testifying in his own defense late yesterday, Antolin said he had been drinking in the cabin with other Mexicans and that after he had been struck he was able to remember none of the knife and gun battle. Antolin had been cut on the head, arm and shoulder during the fight.

3 WOMEN HURT AS AUTO RUNS DITCH AT MESA

Three Newport harbor women were hurt in an automobile accident when the driver ran the machine into a ditch at Costa Mesa yesterday rather than run down a boy riding a bicycle.

Mrs. Violet Webster, president of the Newport Legion auxiliary, driver of the machine, lost one tooth, had five stitches taken in her lip and six stitches in her right knee and was badly bruised; Elia Marie Wilkins had two fingers of the left hand broken and Egorrette Gordon suffered severe bruises.

Mrs. R. Hostettler and daughter, Marilyn, who were riding in the front seat with Mrs. Webster, escaped injuries.
The women were on their way to a meeting of the county Legion auxiliary council in Orange when Lowell Dnart, 13, of 213 North Garfield street, Montebello, is said to have turned his bicycle directly in front of the car.

During this trip the girls, who were delegates to the Kappa Delta Phi national sorority convention in Indiana, travelled extensively throughout the northern part of the country and Canada. They returned from Vancouver by boat.
A formal dance was planned at the business meeting which followed the picnic supper. The dance will be held in the early part of September. Fifteen girls were present.

HUNT HIT AND RUN DRIVER AS VICTIM DIES

David Ruez, 9-year-old Orange youth, who was knocked from his bicycle at Seventeenth and Bush streets Monday night by a hit and run driver, died at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the county hospital.

Death resulted from a fracture of the skull. The body was removed to the Gilgoly Funeral parlors in Orange, where Coroner Earl Abbey has called an inquest for 3 p. m. tomorrow.
Santa Ana police, learning of the boy's death last night, redoubled their efforts to locate the driver of the car, which went east on Seventeenth street, leaving the child to lie fatally injured in the street.
A. L. Steward, sergeant of police, said today that he was working on a clue which he believed would reveal the identity of the driver.

ASSERTS MORAL REGENERATION IS WORLD NEED

"Until the nations of the world are willing to liquidate their debts they can make little progress toward liquidating their debts," declared Harry V. Adams of the Security-First National bank of Los Angeles, in an address yesterday noon before the Knights of the Round Table.

"The primary need of the world today is moral and spiritual regeneration as the essential basis of economic recovery," Adams further asserted.

"Society in general, and every minor division of society, is composed of three general classes—the ultra conservative at one extreme, the radical at the other extreme, and in between these extremes there are the rest of us, whom we have called 'The Great Crowd' because there are so many of us."

"The hope of America and of the world is in this great crowd," the speaker stated. "For the great crowd knows that always, the truth lies somewhere between the extremes of radicalism and conservatism, and refuses to be led into dangerous situations by either party."

"We are informed that only one per cent of the American people are viciously criminal. This leaves some 118,800,000 of us who average up quite well.

"Our installment buying records emphasize the fact of this innate honesty of most of us. With over five billions of dollars as a grand total of such buying, the proportion of bad debts is reported as only slightly over one per cent."

"Further, we are informed that over 90 per cent of our commercial transactions are based upon credit. Credit is an outgrowth of confidence and confidence is based upon character."

"In view of these facts, the great crowd remains calm and unafraid—the while the ranters rant, the howlers howl and the demagogues demagogue."

"The great crowd believes that the past was good, the present is better, and the future will be best of all—that humanity is on an upward swing."

Right now, when school budgets are being checked and made up for the ensuing year, it would not be amiss to make comparisons regarding school costs of recent years.

County and school expenditures gained approximately three million dollars from 1927 to 1931, when the dollar was increasing 50 per cent or more in value, and the schools were responsible for one-half of this increase, a check of the county records reveals.

To be exact, the school gain from 1927 to 1931 was $1,579,972.65, according to comparative figures of the county statistical reports for the two years.

How It Grew

Taking out of these figures expenditures for "capital outlays," we find that operating expenses of the Santa Ana schools in 1927 was $681,911.50 and in 1931, the first year of the depression, it had gained $189,201.27 and had reached $871,112.77.

In the second year of the depression, ending on the first of this current month, Santa Ana school expenditures again gained, $145,652.88 over the second year, and reached $996,765.65.

Teachers' salaries in the Santa Ana schools in 1927 totaled $470,625.21 and in 1931 reached $633,257.74, a gain of $162,632.53. The new Santa Ana budget for the third depression year, totals $817,742.56, which is $169,555.59 less than the 1931-32 expenditures; $33,463.71 less than the 1930-31 expenditures, and $135,831.56 more than the 1927 expenditures. In other words, the new economy budget is still an increase.

MANSLAUGHTER TRIAL IS SET FOR NEXT WEEK

Arraigned on an amended complaint charging him with manslaughter, Louis Youngchild, Anaheim man, pleaded not guilty to the charge when he appeared before Judge James L. Allen in the superior court late yesterday afternoon.

Two counts of manslaughter are being faced by Youngchild as the result of the deaths of Raymond Zsaznek and Paul McMullen, Corona youths, who were killed when a car allegedly driven by Youngchild suddenly turned to the left at the intersection of West Orangethorpe and Magnolia avenues, causing the motorcycle upon which the youths were riding to crash into the side of the car.

Youngchild was arrested on a charge of driving an automobile under the influence of intoxicating liquor but after the preliminary hearing before Justice Kenneth E. Morrison was held to answer on manslaughter charges.

The date for the trial in superior court has been set for July 18.

ORANGE MAN HURT WHEN HIT BY CAR

G. L. Niles, of 221 North Olive street, Orange, was seriously injured at 8 o'clock last night when he was run down by an automobile at Third and North Main streets.

According to a police report, he was struck by an automobile driven by Lois Simmons, of 219 South Tenth street, Montebello. He suffered a fractured collar-bone and head injuries. A Winthier ambulance took him to his home in Orange.

Niles, walking east on Third street with his daughter, stepped off the curb in front of the car, traveling south on Main street, and was struck before the driver of the car could apply the brakes, according to her report to the Santa Ana police.

CHIEF NOT READY TO ANNOUNCE SHAKEUP

Relative to an announcement made by Chief of Police F. W. Howard yesterday to the effect that there would be a shakeup in his department, in order to cut costs for the coming fiscal year, no definite announcement concerning the plan was forthcoming today.

Howard declared that he was not ready as yet to make a definite announcement and that it would be several days before the changes would be made. It will constitute however, the releasing of three men from the department and the employing of two in their places and will mean a change of various positions and ranks on the department, he said.

All Flies Die

All Mosquitoes . . . At a Touch of This Perfumed Mist . . . Based on Flowers of Japan

There is a spray based on an extract of Japanese flowers. It was developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Research Fellowship. Ten years and over $100,000 have been spent in perfecting it.

The name is Fly-Tox. When used in a new-type Fly-Tox sprayer, it fills the room with a cloud of perfumed mist, harmless to people, stainless to anything.

But that flower extract is deadly to flies and mosquitoes. It kills them quickly at a touch. And they can't escape if Fly-Tox is used rightly—to fill the whole room with that floating mist.

Fly-Tox, at a cost of 1 or 2 cents, rids a room completely of these deadly pests.

This is the latest, most efficient, most economical way to free your home—and keep it free—from these germ-bearing insects. They contaminate all foods they touch—infect when they bite. They destroy over 40,000 lives per year, mostly lives of children. Employ it liberally and often to be safe.

FLY-TOX ONLY

A Rex Research Product

Use Fly-Tox only, and always in a new-type Fly-Tox sprayer. Then every stroke will release into the air some 150,000 particles of spray.

Fly-Tox is efficient beyond all compare. It is all-pervading, quick and economical. Every lot is tested on flies in our laboratory. Its potency is guaranteed by every dealer. Use nothing less efficient when the safety of your home is at stake. Fly-Tox is sold everywhere throughout the world. Harmless to people. Stainless. Made by the Makers of Moth-Tox.

PROHIBITION NEED TOLD AT CAMP MEETING

Edward N. Himmel, M. S., assembly speaker, delivered two stirring addresses at the summer assembly of the California Conference of the Evangelical church at the assembly grounds at the corner of North Bristol and West Fairhaven streets, Santa Ana, at the morning and evening sessions yesterday.

"Prohibition" was the subject at the morning service. "The real Christian," he said, "has to be a fighter. He fights, of course, with spiritual weapons rather than with carnal weapons. Christ was a fighter. That's why they crucified Him."

"The convictions of the prohibitionist must be grounded first upon the fact that alcohol is a poison to the body. In milder forms it slows down reaction time. In larger doses it produces temporary insanity. Men otherwise kind and considerate become brutes under its influence.

"My mother taught me never to laugh at a drunken man. To her it was pathetic to see a human being, made in the image of God, fall to a level below the beasts of the field."

Liquor Return Menace

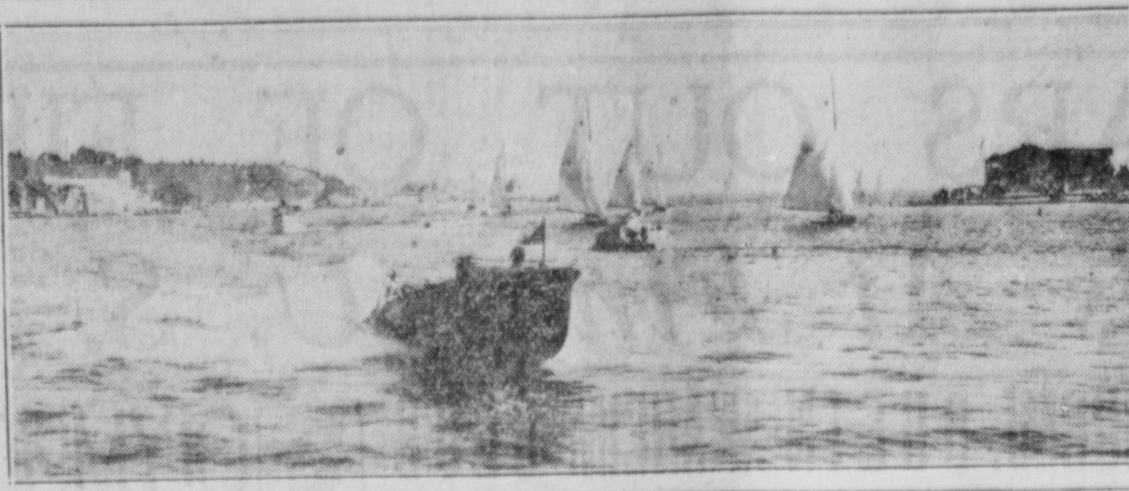

"Did the eighteenth amendment come too soon? Well, when is a republic ready for a law? Is it when all want it or when the majority want it? Where can you find a law which has more honestly won its way than the prohibition law? What about beer and prosperity? Can't the business man see that the return of the saloon would be a menace to every legitimate business? Money spent for wet goods can't go for dry goods."

"Is it not a state problem? It was the failure of the state control that forced the issue into national circles. The issue is clear cut. It is either prohibition or alcoholism. The question for us to decide is whether we want the future generations of boys and girls, growing up to take our places, to meet the temptations of this curse of ages, this great destroyer of human kind."

"Christ's Appeal to Youth" was the subject used by the speaker in the evening address. "There are many reasons why young people should appreciate their youth," he said. "Youth is life in the making. There will always be a youth problem because a thing may be marred in the making and so youth is always a crucial time. It is the formation period of life when great life decisions are made and when character and

IMPROVED HARBOR ATTRACTS BOATS

Improvements made in the entrance to Newport harbor have aided in attracting many craft to the harbor, which is regarded as one of the finest on the coast. This picture, looking out toward the ocean, shows many boats, both power and sail, coming up the channel into the harbor which is to be the scene of the famous Tournament of Lights next Saturday night.

personality become to a large extent 'set'."

Unfair Criticism

"How unfair are some of the wholesale judgments of youth. Everything that is said about youth in general is doubtless true of some youth in particular. For every young man who delights in shocking his schoolmates with some rash assertion, there is a sane and earnest lad to match him. For every flippant girl who preaches a self-made doctrine of freedom there is a sensible girl quietly fitting herself for the stern responsibilities of life."

"Christ's appeal to youth is the appeal to the best; the best in character and in service. It is the appeal of friendship and comradeship. How his sincerity, his mastery, his friendliness, his spirit of service and sacrifice should appeal and does appeal to youth. How inspiring to hear youth sing 'Follow the Glean.' What is this gleam to be followed? It is the radiance of the unfading glory of the Man of Galilee."

The Rev. F. A. Zeller will conduct the Morning Watch at the opening of the assembly tomorrow morning. Himmel will give a Bible lecture later in the morning following study periods. After lunch the W. M. S. gold medal contest will be held. A young people's round table and question box will be held following the contest. The Rev. Everett Schneider will lead the young people's vespers after supper which will be followed by an evangelistic and consecration meeting. Himmel will talk on the subject "The Great Decision" in the evening.

NEWPORT LIGHTS TOURNEY TO REFLECT OPTIMISM AND PROVIDE GREAT SPECTACLE

This year's Tournament of Lights, to be held in Newport Bay Saturday evening, will be an expression of optimism in Southern California, as well as a spectacle of beauty that should outshine every one of the fine spectacles that have been staged each summer since the first "water carnival" in 1908, according to reports made by those in charge.

To say truthfully that an event of this kind will be "bigger and better" than ever is, to use slang, saying a mouthful this year. But those responsible for the Tournament of Lights—outside communities which will be represented by entries in the parade as well as those of the harbor district who conceived and developed the "Lights"—have looked upon 1932 as the Olympic and Fiesta year of California rather than a year of depression. That is already proved, for the entries in the big lights fete are more numerous than ever before.

So Newport bay presents a gala appearance this week, with scores of floats and boats being prepared for the parade Saturday evening, when 50,000 or more people will line the shores of the bay. Santa Ana, Tustin, Anaheim, San Clemente, Laguna Beach, Pasadena, Long Beach and Costa Mesa are outside communities which have entered civic or community floats.

Aircraft Take Part

The city of Newport Beach, the fire department, the Newport Harbor Yacht club, Balboa Yacht club, West Newport Yacht club, Boy Scouts, Newport Harbor Service club, American Legion, Corona del Mar, Service Laundry, Sea Shell cafe, Southern California Edison company and other local organizations and concerns will swell the list of floats, with numerous boats, large and small, making up the other divisions of the parade.

While the parade is going on, four huge anti-aircraft searchlights from Fort MacArthur will project their bright beams into the skies, following the Goodyear blimp and other aircraft flying above.

Music will be more plentiful than ever before in this parade.

DIVIDEND PAID DEPOSITORS SOON

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 13. — J. H. Mills, who is in charge of the First State bank here, now under receivership, stated yesterday that he had not received definite information as to when there would be paid a dividend to depositors of the bank. Mills said that he hoped a dividend would be paid some time next week, but as to the exact date or the per cent of the dividend he was unable to state.

TO HAVE a delightful outing turned into a disgusting and expensive day because of the lack of insured Lubrication is a common occurrence, for America's motorists last year replaced more than 20,000,000 badly worn or burned out bearings—an average of more than 50,000 each day.

Faulty or inefficient lubrication—the lack of the right lubricants at the right time—proved responsible for most of these millions of replacements. But now you can enjoy freedom from worry as to the proper lubrication of your car through Quaker State's Insured Lubrication Plan offered through independent dealers convenient to you.

So sure is Quaker State that the exclusive use of their oils and greases will entirely eliminate all expense and inconvenience resulting from faulty or insufficient lubrication, that they say:

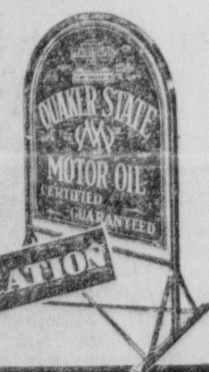

"If you will have your independent dealer use only Quaker State lubricants in your car and adopt the Quaker State Plan of Lubrication, we will supply you with a One Year Guarantee insured in The Travelers Indemnity Company of Hartford, Conn., which agrees to pay the customary cost of repairing or replacing any burned out and inoperative bearings resulting from faulty or insufficient lubrication."

While you may never yet have burned out a bearing, your car may be one of the millions this year, so insure any loss which may come through faulty or inefficient lubrication by investigating this simple plan devised by Quaker State. Check and mail the coupon below, or drive in at the familiar green and white Quaker State Motor Oil sign and ask the independent dealer about this plan. He will be glad to answer all questions.

To secure this protection it is asked that you equip your car with the device called "Roll-o-Miles." Your Insured Guarantee will be sent free. "Roll-o-Miles" is a lubrication guide and Check-Chart in a metal container. It rolls up and fits into the pocket of your car. It provides a chassis diagram of your car showing every lubrication point with the proper lubricant required, with space for making a record of every oiling and greasing job.

OLIVE KICKS STARS OUT OF FIRST PLACE

Predict New Records At Final U. S. Team Trials

'32 TESTS LURE FINEST GROUP OF CANDIDATES

BY RICHARD C. WILSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
PALO ALTO, July 13.—(UP)—There was every indication today that America's track stars may establish several world's records in their battle for places on the American Olympic team here this week end.

Probably never before has the country been favored with so many stellar performers in the sprints and middle distances. Interest in the field tryouts has been further increased by the rivalry between Eastern and Western coaches.

Determined to smash the belief, prevalent in this section, that the west will predominate in winners Saturday at Stanford's stadium, Eastern coaches are working hard in hand to produce as many winners as possible.

The duel between "Big Ben" Eastman, Stanford's flash, and William Carr, the Pennsylvania phantom, in the 400-meter sprint promises to be the meet's biggest attraction. Carr defeated Eastman in the 1. C. 4-A championships, but Coach "Dink" Templeton of Stanford predicts the Pennsylvania will have to cover the distance in less than 47 seconds (world's record time) to win again Saturday.

Wykoff Sprint Favorite
The 100-meter dash will bring together the greatest field of American sprinters ever assembled. At least 18 men will strive for the crown "world's fastest human." Seven of them will be chosen for the Olympic team, according to Lawson Robertson, coach of the American team.

While Frank Wykoff, University of Southern California flash, is the favorite, due to his consistent record equalling performances this season, he will face the stiffest competition of his career in the tryouts.

Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette's unbeaten Negro, is rated Wykoff's most formidable foe. Metcalfe has been having trouble with his starting and may have to content himself with winning the 200 meters, in which he is a decided favorite. He has twice unofficially beaten the 200 meters record, 20.4 seconds, this season.

New York Team Favored
With a selected team of 28 men, including several National champions, the New York Athletic club arrived yesterday, accompanied by the veteran coach, Bernie Wefers. They will enter the tryouts as favorites to win the team championship because of the array of stars assembled under their colors for the field events.

Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic Games committee, was due to arrive today. His first business will be to approve the list of officials for the trials, and then he will probably take up the knotty case of Eastman's arbitrary selection for the 800 meters.

Eastman and his coach have insisted that the Stanford runner will try out only for the 400 meters. Brundage has insisted that he must also qualify for the 800 meters "just the same as anyone else."

The Stanford stadium promises to hold the largest throng ever assembled in the west for a track event, judging from early ticket sales. The stadium has a seating capacity of 90,000, and Stanford officials expect it will be more than half filled for the finals Friday and Saturday.

14 TROJANS ENTERED IN OLYMPIC TRIALS

LOS ANGELES, July 13.—Eager to represent the United States on the track and field this summer, 34 University of Southern California athletes will leave here tomorrow night for the final Olympic tryouts this week end at Palo Alto. The Trojan party, under Coach Dean Cromwell and Director of Athletics William Hunter, will make its headquarters in San Jose while in the north.

Following are the Southern California men entered in the big Palo Alto meet:
Frank Wykoff, 100 and 200 meters; Ed Albrecht and Art Wessner, 400 meters; Ferris Webster, 800 meters; Bill Stokes, high hurdles; Jimmy Payne, high and low hurdles; Bill Graber, pole vault; Jim Stewart and Bob Van Osdel, high jump; Dick Barber and John Johnson, broad jump; Hueston Harper, shot put; Bob Hall, discus, and Frank Williamson, javelin.

WOUNDED CUB, GIRL SHOOTER

Like the good infidel that he is, Bill Jurgens, shortstop for the Chicago Cubs, made a couple of spectacular stops of bullets, but the error of the play must be charged to Miss Violet Popovich, 21-year-old Chicago brunet. Disappointed at Jurgens' lack of response to her affection for him, Miss Popovich went to his hotel room intent on suicide. Jurgens intervened and was shot.

Jack Kearns Weds; Mickey Is Best Man

NEW YORK, July 13.—(INS)—Jack Kearns, sleek and brainy fashion-plate who managed Jack Dempsey, has married the daughter of a wealthy Kentucky colonel, it became known today.

He and Miss Lillian Kansler, 23, of Louisville, were wed last night at the home of Mickey Walker, former middleweight champion, in Shrewsbury, N. J. Jack is Mickey's manager.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker attended the couple and the Rev. Henry Owens of Red Bank performed the ceremony in the room where Mickey and the former Clara Helmer, of Brooklyn, were married in February, 1931, with Kearns as best man.

With Mr. and Mrs. Walker, the newlyweds plan to sail shortly for Europe where Kearns is hopeful of arranging a bout between Mickey and Larry Gains, British heavyweight.

The bride's father is Col. John Kansler, retired Louisville business man.

LYON WINS OLYMPIC TRYOUTS AT HARBOR

Bill Lyon, 17, of Hollywood, sailed to victory over older and more experienced yachtsmen in finals of the monotype class American eliminations at Newport harbor yesterday, winning the right to represent the United States in Olympic Games races.

Lyon scored 46 points in the two-day eliminations.

Joe Jessop, San Diego, was close behind with 43 points, while Bill Wagner of Alhambra bay and Harry Davis of Long Beach, of an age with the victor, tied for third with 40 points.

The monotype boats are 12 feet long and carry 93 square feet of canvas in a cat rig. The Olympic races in this class will be sailed in Long Beach and Los Angeles harbors August 5-12.

Owen Churchill finished with 36 points yesterday. Lou Coffey had 20; Owen Dresden, 28; Bill Cooper, 22.

SMITH IMPRESSIVE IN 'B' COURT PLAY

R. Carson Smith was installed today as one of the favorites to relieve Eugene Robinson of the Santa Ana tennis championship of Class A. He won two matches yesterday, defeating Lowell Green, 6-2, 6-1, and Dave Styring, 6-1, 2-6, 6-2. Styring was previously undefeated.

Champion Robinson continued his unbroken string of victories by beating Raymond Foster, 6-2, 6-1. L. W. Archer won from Alfred Ault, 7-5, 6-2; Russell Lee trounced R. B. Willis, 6-0, 6-2. Both Archer and Lee are undefeated. Frank Betts vanquished Russell, 6-2, 6-3, and Styring beat Green, 6-2, 6-1.

"POP" TAKES STOCK

"Pop" Warner at Stanford finds that he has lost 16 football letters from his 1931 squad, six of them regulars, and that he will have back 18 letters for the 1932 eleven, five of whom were regulars. He considers his material from the yearling and goof squads as fair, but untired.

NURMI, DUE IN L. A., TO KNOW STATUS JULY 28

LOS ANGELES, July 13.—(UP)—Paavo Nurmi, was scheduled to arrive here today to begin training for the 1932 Olympic Games in which he may not be allowed to compete.

A hero of the 1924 games at Paris and the 1928 games at Amsterdam, his amateur standing has been challenged and it will not be until July 28, two days before the opening of the tenth Olympiad, that his status will be decided.

Nurmi presumably was aboard a Santa Fe train, due here today with 13 other Finns, the first representatives of their nation to arrive for the competitions that start July 30.

There were repeated rumors that Nurmi, intending to evade publicity, slipped from the train during the night but Runar Ohls, Finland's Olympic attaché here, insisted the great distance runner was with his fellow countrymen.

Settle Nurmi Status July 28
Nurmi's eligibility, questioned because of asserted irregularities in reporting traveling expenses, must be decided by the International Amateur Athletic Federation. The meeting of the federation has been called for July 28.

Nurmi, if the federation passes him, intends to run in the 10,000 meter and the marathon. The latter is the only distance competition that has not fallen to him.

COLTON AGAIN TOPS INLAND NIGHT LOOP

Colton's Reds aren't dead yet! The revitalized Southern California night ball champions are second leading the American league's second half undefeated in four games. Rio, which tied Riverside for the first half title, is second. Riverside and Pomona are deadlocked for third.

Colton withdrew from the league after the first half, but after a general rearrangement of inland clubs came back into the race under new management and a host of new players. "Lefty" Crovatin has been handling fine ball for the revamped champions.

The rearrangement of clubs witnessed the retirement of Redlands rather than Colton, Pomona replaced Redlands.

JOHNSTON MAY PROMOTE RING ELIMINATIONS

BY HENRY MCLENORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, July 13.—(UP)—Genius that he is, James J. Johnston of Madison Square Garden went into a huddle with his free-wheeling, floating power brain yesterday, emerged with an idea—an elimination tournament to select a challenger for Jack Sharkey's heavyweight championship.

"The idea, it came to me in a flash," Johnston said. "I didn't hardly have to think at all." The flash probably came as Johnston was thumbing through one "Life and Death of Tex Rickard," a handsome Morocco-bound volume.

OLYMPIC HEROES OF YESTERDAY and TODAY

BY MELVIN W. SHEPPARD
(Former Middle-Distance Star and Olympic Winner)

As regularly as the Olympic Games roll around every four years, there is energetic discussion on the best method of selecting the team.

The coaches and athletes give their opinions but the question is invariably settled by men who do not run and men who do not train the runners. Perhaps that is the reason why the wearing system of tryouts still holds for stars and mediocre runners alike.

I will grant that in a county as large and prolific in material as this, there is always the chance that new stars will spring up overnight and that trials are necessary.

But I have felt for years that with the series of tryouts could be combined a plan for selection of outstanding performers without compelling them to undergo highly taxing competitions to earn a place on the team.

I am sure the American athletes were an infinitely finer team in the final tryouts at Boston in 1928 than in Amsterdam. A comparison of the performances here and there of Lloyd Hahn, Ray Conger, Frank Wykoff and a dozen others is positive proof of that.

She ancient argument against this plan is that charges of favoritism would fly. My only answer to that is that if the nation's athletes feel a veteran such as Lawson Robertson, the head coach this year, cannot be trusted with such a responsibility, then it is too bad.

I believe one great reason why the Finnish runners have been winning so many Olympic championships since the war is due to the fact that Finland does not compel its stars to endure rigorous trials. It is impossible for a middle or long distance runner to be in top form for two sets of games within a month, especially when those tests are of the magnitude of the final American trials and the Olympic Games.

OLYMPIC HOPES

RALPH METCALFE

From the ranks of the unknown, where his blazing finishes usually carry him to the tape first.

Through high school at Tilden Tech, and thus far at Marquette, Metcalfe has been known as a "warm weather athlete." He is big and strong—5 feet 11 and weighing 180 pounds—which will fortify his chances in the many trial and semifinal heats of international competition.

Metcalfe electrified track and field fans during the National Collegiate at Chicago when he beat accepted world records for 100 meters, 220 yards, and 200 meters. His time for 100 yards was 10.5 seconds, equalling the mark. He turned 100 meters in 10.2 seconds, 220 yards in 20.5 seconds, and 200 meters in 20.3 seconds.

At the Drake relays, Metcalfe trimmed a fast field in the century in 9.5 seconds, carnival and world record time. But he admits that he can't get started fast enough to run his best at 100.

HOOKS and SLIDES

by WILLIAM BRAUCHER

When the New York State Athletic Commission, in Bologna Bulletin No. 9,261,342, announced that hereafter the radio broadcasting of prize fights must be placed in the hands of experts, it made every thing perfectly clear. Up to now, apparently, the N. Y. S. A. C. has left the matter of broadcasts in charge of inept experts. And now, would the N. Y. S. A. C. kindly tell the folks just what and who is an expert?

THE MACK MACHINE

Stories to the effect that Connie Mack was very disgusted with many of his athletes this year, and that certain infielders, outfielders, pitchers and catchers had been placed upon the block willy-nilly, are just so much epiphany.

When and if Mr. Mack decides to trade any of his players, you may depend upon it that Mr. Mack, disgraced or not, will get full value received. Mr. Mack is not tearing down any more ball clubs, but is trying desperately to build one up.

SCHALK AT BUFFALO

Tidings from Buffalo operatives glowingly describe the success of Ray Schalk as manager of the Bisons. It will be recalled that Schalk never had much luck as manager of the Chicago White Sox. But then, Mr. Schalk undoubtedly has a better team at Buffalo than he ever had at Comiskey park.

SENATOR-YANKEE FEELING

During the Dickey-Reynolds hostilities, minor engagements between certain of the Senators and Yankees were overlooked. Thus, Buddy Meyer.

Babe Ruth took Buddy's legs from under him with a neat slide to second base during the game. Pitcher Allen of the Yankees hit Buddy on the arm with a fast ball. Lou Gehrig, tearing into second, turned Buddy upside down.

Maybe you couldn't blame a little guy like Buddy Meyer if he slid into first with spikes high and cut a nice hole in Gehrig's pants. Anyway, that's exactly what Buddy did.

THE PRINTED WORD

The Cardinals' front office has resorted to a little pamphlet, distributed among the fans, giving news of the team's achievements. In a recent issue of the tiny four-page paper, it was called to the attention of the fans, that they should be sure and turn out on home coming day to see Hasey, Roetger, High and Frey, former Cardinals, in Cincinnati uniforms.

Now isn't that just too thrilling?

HEMUS' DOUBLE DECIDES 3 TO 1 FRAY IN TENTH

Blasted out of first place for the first time this year, Santa Ana today was at least grateful there is only one Olive in the National Night league.

In a 10-inning strife teeming with drama, the plundering Packers took the measure of the proud Stars here, last night, 3 to 1.

This was the first game Santa Ana has lost within the confines of its new Bowl, but the second the champions have surrendered this season to the grim Gateway Greenies.

Larry Hemus, former teammate of Floyd Vaughan on Fullerton ball teams, broke Santa Ana's heart in the tenth by flogging a clean double to right-center, scoring two runs after two were out. Hemus' contribution was a firm hit ball which the Stars' Red Ballard did well to keep from going for a home run.

Hemus Hero of Victory
The bases were full when Hemus connected. Pitcher Joe Cornelius, who had come to the rescue of a wobbling Ira DeBusk during the rally, was the victim.

Passing the ninth in a 1-1 death grip, Olive served notice the end was at hand, by placing on base the first two batsmen who faced Debusk.

Catcher "Hen" Thiers beat out a perfect bunt down the first base line.

Tedder bounded feebly back to DeBusk who thought Third Baseman Tom Denney was going to field the ball, and let it roll past him for an infield single.

That was a signal for George Lackaye, Santa Ana's manager, to motion Cornelius out of the bullpen where he had been warming up for several innings.

Cornelius retired the free swinging Sweet on a pop foul to Wilcox who made a spectacular catch while extended at full length on the ground.

Fly Advances Runners
Hatfield hoisted a long fly to Leavitt Daley in left field. Thiers and Tedder advancing a base after the catch.

Fritz Gunther was next and Cornelius quickly worked the count on him to two strikes and two balls. Gunther barely ticked the next one and momentarily appeared out but Wilcox dropped the foul strike and Gunther got new life. Eventually he drew a walk, filling the bases.

Hemus then scorched his low line drive between Hapes and Ballard, scoring Thiers and Tedder with the two winning runs. Shell was an easy out, Cornelius to Ed Daley.

The teams opened with five innings of scoreless ball. Santa Ana took the lead in the sixth, making its only run in that frame.

Memphy's Hill led off with a Texas league double to left which Shortstop Griffith knocked down but couldn't hold. Hill scored on successive infield outs by L. Daley and Hapes, both Hemus to Sweet.

Denney's Error Ties Score
Olive tied it in the seventh. Gunther beat out a bunt and Hemus sacrificed. Shell singled in relief, putting Gunther on third.

Griffith attempted to bunt, popped out to Ed Daley, but Shell sneaked to second after the catch. Hemus grounded harmlessly to third Baseman Denney who muffed the easiest kind of a chance.

Gunther scoring and Shell going to third. Thiers followed with a bunt to DeBusk who made a play at the plate for Shell whom

Mrs. Neville delegated members from each of the churches of the city to collect dues from those who already have signed the pledge.

Two Crusaders those who were members of the W. C. T. U. when it was first organized in Ohio, were present at the meeting. They were Mrs. John McKibben and Mrs. Harriet Bacon, both of Orange.

She stated that the handwriting should be on the wall for the liquor traffic. A quartet from the First Christian church sang "Help Just a Little" and "A Hard Pull, Together."

Seek Jam, Jellies

She announced that the unveiling of the Frances Willard bust at the new state building in Los Angeles is to take place next Sunday.

It was announced that W. C. T. U. day will be observed July 20 at Pacific Palisades. Mary Harris Armour is to speak in Anaheim park July 24 and in Santa Ana at the First Presbyterian church July 25.

Cause of Broken Homes

In giving her address, Miss Harford stated that social disease and alcoholism go hand in hand, and go back to the time of Lot. Alcohol and prostitution almost always are found together, she said. Alcohol is often the cause of the broken home, whose children fall by the wayside without the proper moral education, she said.

"Never before has social life been so intricate as it is today," she stated.

The highest of ideals should be set before the children, the speaker continued. Young mothers should keep their children in hand, and explaining the facts of life rather than keeping silence. It is the work of the home and not the school or church to tell boys and girls of the facts of life, before they obtain distorted views of the question from outside sources, she said.

A morning which members devoted to fancy work and quilting was brought to a close when a delicious covered dish luncheon was served at small tables, prettily appointed. The hostesses served buffet style. Fifteen members were present.

The business session following was in charge of Mrs. John H. Hines, the vice president. In the absence of the president, Mrs. J. T. McInnis, it was announced that the next meeting will be held August 9 in the home of Mrs. C. C. Bonebrake. Mrs. W. Scott Elmer and Mrs. Wallace Dennis will be co-hostesses at this time.

Bridge was enjoyed during the afternoon, with Mrs. C. C. Bonebrake and Mrs. J. F. Rowley score-brake first and second high. Mrs. Charles Oldfield and Mrs. Schooley received third and fourth awards. The afternoon was concluded when Mrs. Edwards, Mrs. McCarthy and Mrs. Goldfeder served refreshments of watermelon and cake.

RUDDY RETURNS FROM MEETING OF CREDIT MEN

A new enthusiasm in business was the keynote of the National Retail Credit Association which was held in Washington, D. C. recently, according to R. Earl Ruddy, manager of the Business Men's association of Santa Ana, who attended the convention.

There was no spirit of excessive optimism expressed at the convention by national leaders, but the feeling was prevalent that there is a job to do which must be attended to, he said.

While at the convention Ruddy served on the rules and regulations and other committees. He attended the convention as secretary of the California Association of Retail Creditors.

Ruddy was away from Santa Ana for 18 days. On the return trip he spent some time in New York, Chicago, Detroit and many other cities. While there is more activity in this section of the country, there is a new spirit of enthusiasm in the East than there is here, Ruddy declared.

The Farmer's Outlook

Written for The United Press by the University of California

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 12.—(UP)—Is this the time to buy a farm?

Is this the time to sell a farm? Both questions are being asked in all sections of California. Both are the basis of what seems like a beginning of a back-to-the-land movement.

To give the correct perspective of the situation, a statement has been made by a man who perhaps knows more about the economics of farm management in California than anyone else.

He is R. L. Adams, professor of farm management at the University of California, and agricultural economist in the Glanville Foundation of Agricultural Economics.

Professor Adams was asked these two questions: Is this the time to buy a farm? And is this the time to sell a farm? He replied as follows:

Time to Buy
"It's a good time to buy but a poor time to sell. Many farms and farm lands are now below their intrinsic producing value. Especially when viewed over a long period of time, and in the hands of competent farmers."

"If that's true, as I believe it to be, then it's bargain day for farm lands."

Professor Adams feels that if history repeats itself, a rise in land prices will eventually come about. In other words, if business and economic cycles operate in the future as they have done in the past, increases in values are bound to come.

Then, he points out, the buyer of farms at present-day bargain prices stands to make good returns on his investment, provided the property can be operated at little or no loss during continuance of the present so-called depression period.

During ten years prior to March, 1922, the price level of California lands dropped 22 points, or from 153 to 131 as the average.

This loss, however, compared to the United States, makes California stand out again. For over the United States, the decrease, during the same period, totaled 27 points, or a fall from 106 to 89 per cent.

State Leads
"While lands in the United States generally are now 11 points below the 1912-14 average, in California they're still 33 points above 1912-14 prices," Professor Adams says.

Here's how the changes from the period of high prices to those of 1931, reduced to acre averages, look up now:

Alfalfa lands, on the average, are now $200. Formerly they were $300.

Lands, cropped to field crops, such as beans, cotton, grain sorghums, etc., formerly priced at $225, are now down to $150.

Grain lands, for dry farming, valued during the high period at $55, are now priced at $35.

In citrus groves, the drop, on the average, has been from $2750 an acre to $2250.

Deciduous fruit orchards, in peaches, pears and prunes have fallen the lowest. The drop has been from $1200 to $475.

Range lands, for cattle and sheep, are now averaged at $14.50. Formerly they were priced at $27.

How Prices Rose
On the other hand, look at the way California farm lands have gone up.

They started at $2 an acre in 1850. By 1870, the average rose to $16 an acre, then to $36 in 1890, and to $58 by 1910.

Then came the rapid rise resulting in average prices of $105 in 1920, and $115 in 1925. In 1930 the average had started dropping, down to $112, though not particularly bad. Since 1930, a definite shrinkage in farm land values has taken place.

The principal question to be answered in buying farms, Professor Adams believes, is not "will the farm pay," but "will it pay me."

This test should be applied to every purchase by every prospective farm buyer.

"Purchasers," Professor Adams advises, "should proceed with caution. For buying in times of depression calls for the courage of one's convictions."

"That courage, however, coupled with full knowledge of what one is doing holds promise of earnings, once the tide of farm prices again starts on its upward trend."

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

by Santa Lou BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Cherry Dixon, pretty 19-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, falls in love with Dan Phillips, newspaper reporter. She quarrels with her father about Dan, leaves home and, taking advantage of Leap Year, asks Dan to marry her.

They are married and for the first time Cherry finds out what it means to lack money. Her struggles with housework are discouraging. Dixie Shannon, movie critic of the News, is friendly with Cherry. She meets handsome Max Pearson, who also works on the News.

Cherry receives a letter from her mother enclosing a check for $500. She returns the check because she will not let her keep it. Dan undertakes to write a short story, becomes discouraged and leaves it unfinished. Two days later Cherry learns her mother is critically ill. She goes home but is not allowed to see her. After a terrifying night Cherry's father tells her the doctor is ready to see them.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXVI

Cherry was on her feet now. The eager hope that had shone in her eyes vanished as quickly as it had appeared.

Her father remained in the doorway. Not so much as a muscle seemed to change in that relentless face.

"Dr. Knowles—?" Cherry began. "He's in the living room. We're to go there."

They went down the stairs, Cherry just a little ahead. She did not look at her father again. Through the doorway of the living room she saw the doctor standing before the fireplace.

There was a great bowl of roses on the table at the right. Cherry's mother had always kept flowers in that bowl, cutting and arranging them herself each morning. There was the basket where her mother kept the bit of sewing she liked to have handy for the hours before dinner. Nothing was changed and yet the whole room seemed empty now.

Cherry rushed forward. "Oh, Dr. Knowles, tell me!" she cried. "I can't bear this waiting. I can't bear it! I've got to know!"

Dr. Knowles put an arm about the girl's shoulders. "You promised me you'd be brave and have control of yourself. We're not discouraged. Not in the least. We're making the biggest fight we know how. You must help us!"

He had known Cherry almost since she was a baby. He had seen her through the attack of chickenpox which, at 5, was her first illness. The girl buried her face in his shoulder. A moment later when she looked up she was dry-eyed.

Walter Dixon's deep voice broke in. He said crisply, "How is she, doctor? Has there been any change?"

The doctor nodded. "Mrs. Dixon has been resting," he said, "and rest is what she needs above all else. She slept for almost two hours this afternoon. She's awake now but we're hoping she'll drop off again before long."

He turned to Cherry. "Will you promise," he said firmly, "that if I let you see your mother for a few moments you won't become hysterical? Will you promise to go in quietly and say just a word or two and then leave?"

"Oh, yes, doctor—I promise!" "Well, then," Dr. Knowles considered, "I think it might be a good idea. Nothing must happen that could disturb her. You understand that? If she should suddenly become aroused—worried—any slight emotional disturbance just now would be dangerous. On the other hand I think she'd be pleased to know you're here. Well?"

"I'll do exactly as you say, doctor," Cherry said earnestly. "I'll be brave!"

The doctor looked across at the other man. "I think you'd better come too, Walter," he said quietly.

The three mounted the stairs and walked down the hall to Mrs. Dixon's room. A nurse—not the one Cherry had seen before—opened the door in answer to the doctor's light knock.

"She's awake," the nurse whispered and stepped back for them to enter.

A single lamp, heavily shaded, gave the only light in the room. The shades at the windows had been drawn and the furniture showed only as dark outlines casting black shadows. Against the opposite wall, just out of the lamp-light, was the great white bed.

The face on the pillow looked as colorless as the pillow slip. A tired face. Expressionless. The gray hair, drawn back severely, made the face seem old. One arm lay out over the covers.

It was Dr. Knowles who stepped forward. The tired eyes seemed to widen a trifle.

"Someone to see you," he said quietly. "I'm only going to let her stay a few moments. Cherry—"

The girl knelt at the bedside. Her two hands, so strong and young, clasped the mother's enfeebled one. "Mother! Oh, Mother!" Cherry breathed the words as though they were a prayer. Her head bowed down against the covers.

"Cherry!"

It was the barest whisper but both men heard it. The girl lifted her head. There were tears in her eyes but she was smiling.

"Oh, Mother, dear, you're going to get well now in a hurry! You must."

A transformation seemed to have come over the mother's face. "My little—girl," she whispered. But she was not looking at Cherry. Her eyes had raised. They turned toward Walter Dixon, lingered pleadingly.

"Walter," she said lowly.

The man bowed at the other side of the bed. He did not speak. Only the eyes that had seemed so grim and unrelenting a few minutes before were veiled by a thin mist.

There was a moment of silence. Then, as though summoning supreme strength, the woman went on waveringly: "Walter—forgive—Cherry?"

Dixon's hand slid over the coverlet. It found his wife's. Then the heavier, darker fingers clasped Cherry's. It was one of those electric moments when the stillness seems alive with a thousand voices.

The man's words broke the spell. "It's all right, Alice," he said huskily. "Everything's going to be all right as soon as you're stronger."

The nurse's starched uniform rustled in the background. Dr. Knowles stepped forward.

"You'll have to say 'good-night' now," he said with professional firmness. "It's time for Mrs. Dixon to be resting."

For an instant Cherry's lips brushed her mother's hand. She clung to the fingers, then slowly released them. "Good-night, Mother," she said softly as she rose. "I'll be here in the morning."

Dixon did not speak again. The two men and the girl filed out of the room.

... In the hall with the door closed behind them Dr. Knowles fumbled for his watch, found it and announced hurriedly, "Well, I'll have to be off. I'll telephone in an hour or two. Sleep is what she needs now. If she can get that it's a big gain. Good night, Cherry. Good night, Walter!"

The doctor's broad shoulders disappeared down the stairway. Cherry raised her eyes timidly to meet her father's. Suddenly the girl was in his arms, her face buried against his coat, and she was sobbing desperately.

He tried to quiet her. Cherry's shoulders rose and sank convulsively.

"Don't!" Dixon said. "You mustn't cry this way. Your mother may hear you."

"It's—my—fault!" the girl moaned brokenly. "It's—my fault she's like this!"

Dixon's arm tightened about his daughter. "There's no use saying such things," he told her heavily. "Or thinking them. We've all made mistakes."

"I can't help it!" Cherry protested. "Oh, if anything should happen—"

"Knowles says she has a chance. It all depends on these next few days."

The girl did not answer. Her sobbing continued less violently. Dixon patted her shoulders. It was as near a career as Cherry could remember having received from her father.

"I think you'd better spend the night here," he told her. "The nurse will let us know if there's any change. Now, Cherry, you must pull yourself together!"

She raised her head and the tremulous lips made an effort at steadiness. For an instant Cherry's eyes met her father's. Neither spoke but in that instant each understood the other.

Dixon went downstairs and Cherry returned to her bedroom. She saw that Sarah had laid out a dainty nightgown and dressing robe. The light from the dressing table fell on rose satin cushions, throwing them into dazzling brilliance. There was a soft breeze stirring the curtain gently.

The girl paused. Was it real or all some horrible nightmare? Here she was in her own room. Had she ever been away? Could it be true that her mother lay in that bed in a room down the hall as though undecided between life and death?

Cherry was swept by an impulse she had not known since childhood. She crossed the room, knelt at the side of the bed and pressing the palms of her two hands together, began to pray.

When Sarah entered 10 minutes later the girl was standing before the open window. Sarah carried a tray.

"You must eat something," she urged soothingly. "You know you can't make yourself sick."

"I don't want to eat," Cherry said wearily.

However she sat down in the big chair before which Sarah had drawn a small table and set down the tray. There was hot broth, a salad and tea. The food was appetizing and Cherry ate more than she had expected to. Presently she pushed the tray away.

"I'll have to telephone," she said. "I'm going to stay here tonight."

She called the number of the apartment and after a time Dan answered. He said, yes, he had found her note. Was her mother any better? He hoped she would be soon. A few more words and the conversation was at an end.

Sarah bustled about getting the room ready for the night. There was the sound of water running in the bathtub and then Sarah saying, "Your bath, Miss Cherry."

The girl undressed and bathed mechanically. Before she got into the bed the nurse tapped at the door. "Your mother's dropped asleep again," she said. "I thought you'd like to know."

"Does that mean—?"

"It's a good sign. I've just talked to the doctor and he was pleased."

The nurse departed. Cherry turned out the light and slipped between the fresh linen sheets. The bed was as soft as down. There was no sound but the faint rustling of the trees outside the window. The breeze was fresh and comforting.

Cherry closed her eyes and tried to sleep but the silence of the house seemed ominous. She repeated the doctor's reassurances. "She must get well!" she told herself. "She's going to get well!"

But in spite of this insistence the girl did not sleep. She turned and tossed and finally gave up the effort to stare open-eyed at the ceiling.

She was still awake hours later when there came a knock at the door. It was the nurse again.

"Your mother," she explained hastily, "I think you'd better come!"

New Ortega Highway Contract To Be Awarded Soon

CAMP GROUNDS BEING BUILT ALONG ROUTE

After working for the past three months on the Ortega Highway between San Juan Capistrano and San Juan Hot Springs a survey crew is expected to complete its task within a short time and turn in plans and specifications and an estimate of cost for grading, and realigning points on the highway and installation of two new bridges. These plans, specifications and estimates of cost will be turned into the Ortega Highway board before the end of July it is expected.

The board plans to call for bids on the work for the second week in August. It is reported that there is $135,000 available in the Ortega Highway fund for this work. Whether or not this amount will be sufficient for the job depends on the engineers' estimates. The board of supervisors and city leaders are planning on a three-day holiday to celebrate the opening of the Ortega highway which brings that inland city 35 miles closer to the Orange county beaches than by other roads, according to word from that city. Members of the board of supervisors of Orange, San Bernardino and Riverside counties and representatives from San Clemente, San Juan Capistrano, Doheny Park and interior cities of San Bernardino and Riverside counties will be asked to take part in the celebration. The opening ceremonies will be held after the Olympic Games and before Labor Day, it is planned.

Work on the current contract is practically completed. The road is in fair shape and with added labor should prove a popular scenic highway for Orange county residents. After a long winding trip through the mountains the highway reaches the crest and more than 1000 feet below is Lake Elsinore and the beautiful fertile valley. The trip is worth while for its scenic beauty alone, travelers state.

The federal government has approved the construction of two free camp grounds among the oaks along the Ortega highway about 30 minutes drive from Elsinore and the same time from San Juan Capistrano. The camps are now in commission and are to be maintained for the pleasure of the public. Chemical sanitary stations and garbage pits are already erected. Running water is provided from nearby streams at all times of the year. Camp fires may be built at the two stations if a permit is obtained from the forest patrolman on duty. Week-end or overnight camping is to be encouraged. Camping longer than a week-end is to be discouraged, it is planned.

Orange county cities as well as those from the interior will make use of the two camps, it is said. The lake at Elsinore, the camps and the Ortega county coast is bound to make this section of the state a real playground, according to leaders of Elsinore and the coast cities.

SECOND TRIAL BRINGS WIDOW $2940 AWARD

After a long and bitter fight through the courts, Mrs. Ida Los-leban was awarded $2940 as a judgment against the California State Life Insurance company as the result of the death of her husband. The husband was awarded $2940.35 as a judgment against the company in November, 1929, by a jury in Judge H. G. Ames' department of the superior court late yesterday afternoon.

The husband was employed by the Anaheim Community Growers association and while working stepped off of a bench. Later he complained of violent pains in his abdomen and was taken to a hospital in Anaheim, where, despite an operation, he died of peritonitis which was caused from a king and break in the intestines. The widow was paid $2500 by the insurance company but the attorneys employed by her established the fact to the satisfaction of the jury that the death was the result of an accident, in which case double indemnity was due her. The insurance firm was disputing the accident phase.

The trial which was completed yesterday was the second in superior court here. The case was thrown out of court previously on a non-suit motion. Later the district appellate court ordered a new trial on the grounds that the case should have gone to a jury.

The amount awarded in the judgment in excess of $2500 was interest since November, 1929.

Commission Asked To Set Water Rate

The California Railroad commission has received an application from American States Water Service company asking that the commission establish rates to be charged its consumers in Placentia and La Jolla, Orange county. The application states that the two communities are now served by an inter-connecting system, but with a different schedule of rates in each city. It further sets up that for more than a year the matter of rates has been a subject of controversy without an agreement being reached. It is now asked that the Railroad commission establish one rate schedule to prevail in both Placentia and La Jolla.

MUSEUM AT SCOUT CAMP INTERESTING

CAMP ROKILL, July 13.—The Rokill Museum under the direction of John Garth is one of the highlights of the Barton Flats region. As one of the most complete and scientifically classified collections of 115 varieties of flowers, many trees, fungi, etc., it is a source of deep interest to a number of the neighboring camps and residents.

There is also a collection of home-made bird houses made by the boys in passing the Merit Badge for Bird Study. Another exhibit which commands a great deal of attention is the Life Zone chart which illustrates the types of plant life found at various levels from Clarks ranch to the top of Mt. San Geronimo.

This rapid growing exhibit is open for examination to anyone from 1 to 3 p. m. every afternoon.

Two well known and highly efficient men in their lines who have visited this institution are George Cantwell, mammalogist of the Los Angeles Museum, and John Fuge, botanist, from San Bernardino.

Scout executive Harrison E. White and his aides, Albert Spencer and Robert J. MacFarlane, assistant scoutmasters, make a 12 hour hike, including a visit to the peak of Mt. San Geronimo last week, where they engraved their names on the tablet placed there to record those who attain the top.

The program will be from 12:15 to 1 p. m., during which Hecman Schulte of Yorba Linda will give a talk on his avocado nursery project.

Hitherto the Western Farm and Home hour has been broadcast from Oakland and the 4-H programs in connection therewith have been drawn from the central part of the state. The forthcoming broadcast will feature club work in Orange, Ventura and Santa Barbara counties. The broadcast will originate in the studios of KFI, Los Angeles, and will be relayed by stations KGO, Oakland; KHQ, Spokane; KOMO, Seattle; KGW, Portland; KFSB, San Diego; KTAZ, Tucson; KGIN, Butte, and KGH, Billings.

Woodbridge Metcalf, extension forester, who is well known to all 4-H members who have attended summer camps, will present two solo numbers. Mrs. Willis Hooper, of Santa Barbara, will play a violin selection, and the Ventura 4-H club steel guitar sextette also will be on the program.

NEW TRUCK IS ADDED FOR FIRE FIGHTERS' USE

Orange county will have additional fire protection during the summer months and all through the year from now on as the result of the assignment of a new patrol truck which will patrol the Santiago canyon area. It was announced today by W. M. Cory, assistant farm adviser, who is secretary of the Orange County Fire Protective association.

The new truck carries a 50-gallon tank of water, a pump to pump the water from the tank and fire fighting hand equipment for a crew of 10 men.

With the addition of the new fire-fighting truck, Orange county now has four trucks which are used in fire protection work. One of the trucks is located at San Juan Capistrano, one at Orange, one at Yorba Linda and the new truck at Santiago canyon.

NOTED LEADER

Richard Lert, below, conductor of the famous Staats opera in Berlin, is to lead the Hollywood Bowl orchestra in some of its "symphonies under the stars" this summer. Lert is the husband of Vicki Baum, novelist, who has just arrived in Los Angeles to hear her husband direct the Bowl orchestra.

TAX BOOST DUE IF ATTENDANCE CONTINUES GAIN

If special day and adult evening classes continue to increase in membership in Santa Ana and other cities in Orange county as they have in the past two years, it will be necessary to raise the tax rate next year to care for the additional expenses, it was learned today through information secured from the office of County School Superintendent Ray Adkinson. This will be necessary to meet the legal requirements set by the state for the county to raise $60 for each student that attends high school.

All money, including bonuses which are paid to the special classes, comes from the county school tax money, a fact that is not well known, it was learned. Last year a total of 11.02 per cent of the money spent on high schools went for special classes.

The total minimum requirements for all high school expenditures in the county last year amounted to $224,555. The total amount which goes to special adult classes is $41,032, leaving a total of $313,335 for the regular classes.

The average daily attendance of special classes for the year 1931-32 was 529, while the total of all those in all classes was 6226.

The total amount of money used to keep up all the classes comes from the 25 cent tax in the county. What is taken for the special classes must be taken from the money ordinarily used for the regular classes, it was pointed out.

Educational administrators feel that if the special classes were more centralized a big saving could be made in the expenditures. Savings also would accrue if only practical courses were given at the special classes, it was pointed out.

Fullerton has discontinued the special classes for next year with a view to saving the money that has been going for their upkeep. There are 10 special classes in the county. There are five special classes in Santa Ana which are conducted at different places or different times.

Picnics and Reunions

The annual Tennessee picnic will be staged at the Pomona park next Sunday, it was announced today. All former Tennesseans are urged to attend. They have been told to bring their own baskets of food and meet hundreds of others from the Volunteer state.

Dieting For Stiff, Sores Fingers

Do you wake up sometimes with your hands all stiff, and sore places in fingers, or knuckles? That isn't the result of hard work or grubbing in the garden, it is the red flag forewarning you that arthritis has moved in on you. Do something about it before it gets set all nice and pretty, or you'll be bawling the loss of your attractive hands or find yourself limping like an octogenarian.

Infection is the underlying reason. It may be tonsils, infected sinuses, or teeth. You are really lucky if the cause is found so easily, for correction is possible, but when the source of infection may lie in the intestinal tract it is difficult to reach. A starch and sugar-free diet helps, and one case I know of was cured (for the time at least) by going on an orange juice diet for two weeks. It takes a good deal of gimp to go on a liquid diet for that length of time, but if the end justifies the means, most of us could stand it.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Cucumber Sauce

(To Serve With Fish)

1 large cucumber, peeled and grated
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated onion
1 tablespoon lemon juice
3-4 cup whipped cream
Paprika and cayenne.
I am giving you this recipe today so that you may use it with tomorrow's recipe, Baped Chicken Halibut.

The flavor of cucumber is the perfect complement to fish.

Grate the peeled cucumber, previously chilled and prepared just before serving. Fold it into the stiffly whipped cream together with the onion and parsley. Season it very lightly with cayenne, but only a pinch of paprika, and add the lemon juice last.
I wonder if this fish dressing couldn't be chilled in the refrigerator with good results? I think so. Prepare it a couple of hours before serving, freeze it, and serve in slices with the baked fish.

Have you ever tried grated cucumber and cream cheese dressing on rye bread? It makes the best sandwich going, in my estimation. Mash the cheese well and thin it with cream or mayonnaise. Add the grated cucumber, drained of juice, a little lemon juice, and sufficient seasonings to taste well. Chill the filling and spread between very thin slices of rye bread at serving time.

The fish sauce has a total of approximately 900 calories, practically all fat ones, the energy-makers.
How would you like to have one re-ipe from which you can make four or five different kinds of cookies, all the best of their kind? I am offering such a recipe in the lead for the week, and I will enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for the FIVE-IN-ONE COOKY RECIPE.

JAMES CAGNEY IN FIGHTING FILM COMING

Just as he sprang upon the world in the most authentic of gangster pictures, "The Public Enemy," and gave the screen its most realistic auto racing picture, "The Crowd Roars," so does James Cagney provide the colorful thrills of the prize-fighting in his latest Warner Bros. picture, "Winner Take All," which comes to the Fox Broadway Theater tomorrow.

With a reputation of punch and power in his pictures, Cagney is happily cast as a two-fisted pugilist who pulls no punches in fight or love.

The story deals with Jim's attempt to come back as a winner by going to a desert resort to build himself up. There he meets Peggy Smith with whom he falls in love; so much so, that he breaks into his convalescence period to fight in order to raise money for her.

The prizefight scenes are masterpieces of realism. Cagney proves that he can not only act the part of a boxer, but can box with the best of them.

Marian Nixon, a new leading lady for James Cagney, makes herself evident in this picture, giving a lovely portrayal of the girl whom Jim really loves. Virginia Bruce acquires herself admirably as the society girl.

The large cast includes Guy Kibbee, Dickie Moore, Clarence Muse, Alan Mowbray, Clarence Wilson, Ralf Harolde, Esther Howard, Allan Lane, John Roche and many others.

"HEART OF N. Y." AT WALKER'S TODAY

"The Heart of New York" the Warner Bros. picture featuring Joe Smith, Charles Dale, George Sidney and Anna Appel, opens today at Walker's State theater.

Directed by Mervyn LeRoy, who directed "Five Star Final," one of last year's "best ten pictures," "The Heart of New York" brings a new treatment to the metropolis which has served as the background for more movies than any other city.

"The Heart of New York" is the story of a father who would rather invent a dish-washing machine than earn a livelihood for his family. After various trials and tribulations he possesses a market, successfully, bringing them wealth and a new series of amusing difficulties.

The story of a waitress who works her way to the top through the friendly leadership of a director, played by Lowell Sherman, the time comes when he needs assistance and she does not refuse him, although it costs her her home, her husband and very nearly her baby.

"What Price Hollywood" is a heart touching drama that brings out a heart in the movie capital that few believed it possessed. Although the picture stars Miss Bennett in a film she does unusually well, the highest honors go to Sherman.

Auxiliary Holds Party At Beach

BUENA PARK, July 13. — Members of the girls' auxiliary enjoyed a beach party at Long Beach Tuesday. Swimming, hiking and a luncheon filled the day. Tentative plans were made for the party to be held on the evening of July 22 in Irvine park. A potluck supper will be followed by dancing at the pavilion. Those enjoying the day at the beach were the Misses Bertha and Edith Page, Carol Battelle, Emily Binder, Virginia and Elizabeth Knott, Ruth Gunby, Polly Upshaw, Lois Coutts and Della Meyers.

HERE TOMORROW

Virginia Bruce and James Cagney in a scene from the Warner Brothers picture, "Winner Takes All," which opens at the Fox Broadway theater tomorrow.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT AT FOX WEST COAST

A strange romance which concerns a woman in love with a man who awakens one day to learn that her husband, believed dead, has returned to claim her, is unfolded on the screen of the Fox West Coast theater today.

The picture is "The Man From Yesterday," new Paramount release which stars Claudette Colbert as the woman and Clive Brook as the husband.

The picture goes back to war days. The husband, an officer in the British army, is reported killed in action. Years pass and the wife falls in love again. Then, as really happened many times when men were reported killed, the husband returns.

Miss Colbert is again beautifully groomed throughout the picture. Again she gives a striking performance. Brook gives his usual good performance. Others in the cast include Andy Devine and Charles Boyer.

THE TINYMITES

The worried Tinies walked real fast while carrying Duncy. Then at last, they reached the circus doctor's tent. Said one, "I hope he's here."

"He'll fix poor Duncy up real quick," Wee Duncy said. "Oh, I'm not sick! In fact I really doubt if there is anything to fear."

"My side still hurts a little bit, but shortly I'll be feeling fit. Why bother Mister Doctor? Let me try and walk alone."

He slipped off of the stretcher and real quickly reached out with his hand and grabbed for Scouty. Then the other Tinies heard him groan.

The doctor also heard the noise. He stepped outside and said, "Well, boys, what seems to be the matter?" "Duncy's hurt," someone replied.

He took a ride and took a flop. The dog that pulled him wouldn't stop. The doctor then said, "Well, I'll take the little lad inside."

"You other boys can wait out here. I hope I'll shortly bring good cheer by telling you your pal's all right," Said Scouty. "So do we!"

"Supposin' Duncy's really hurt, just from that tumble in the dirt," said Scouty. "Mr. what will we do, if he must stay in bed?"

"He wouldn't like that one wee bit. It's hard for him to even sit real still for just one moment."

"You are wrong," another said. "Why he's the one who loves to sleep. It's often been real hard to keep him moving, when we're on a hike. He is a lazy lad."

"However, I just hope that he will be as well as can be. If Mister Doctor tells us that, I know we'll all be glad."

EXECUTIVE AND LEGISLATIVE FUNCTIONS COMBINED

Whatever condition the country is in, due to good or bad legislation, should be credited to our President. The legislation which he has formulated and suggested, has been enacted. That which Congress has proposed has been vetoed, so that the remedies, as far as law is concerned, which will be on the statute books to meet the conditions of this country, are the plans of our Chief Executive.

If they fulfill the functions and produce the results, it will show the wisdom of our President. He should receive credit for it, and it will evidence the wisdom of his re-election. But up to the present time, the actual conditions of the country have not been greatly helped. To be sure, the Reconstruction Finance corporation has saved the situation, as far as the banks were concerned, and the borrowers from the banks, from getting worse.

But the condition which produced this situation in the banks, namely, lack of confidence, and business depression, is probably as great today as it was when the Reconstruction Finance Corporation measure was passed. It may be this added legislation, as determined upon by the President, will remedy the situation to some extent. We certainly hope so.

There are some things which Congress has suggested, that the President has refused to consider, and which millions of people in this country believe would have been very helpful. It is unfortunate that in such crises, the joint wisdom of our law-makers cannot be used, and as far as effectual legislation is concerned, we could very well do away with both houses of Congress, and let our Chief Executive perform its function and practically that is what is being done now. We are pretty strong believers in our Constitution, and its method of doing business. We believe in the separation of the judiciary, the legislative and the executive functions.

It may be that the President has all wisdom in this matter. But certainly the conditions of the country would not prove this, for every bill which he has suggested, has been enacted, and those which he has been opposed to, have been discarded, so that the condition we are in, as far as it is due to law, is due to President Hoover's leadership.

Frankly, we are rather inclined to believe that he doesn't exactly know what is the wise thing to do, and unless he is absolutely certain, we could almost believe that it would be the better part of wisdom to let the national law-making body function. It is possible that some things that they suggest might be helpful. But unless they can pass their measures by a vote of two to one, there is no hope of their being enacted.

It was never intended that the veto power of the President should be used for purposes of taking over the prerogatives of Congress, but only to be used at very extraordinary times, when legislation may have been passed without any consideration, or which was manifestly unconstitutional or destructive.

We will be happy if the President's use of power at this time will restore us to the business condition for which we are all looking, and should this come, our confidence in his wisdom would be great and abiding.

A TEMPEST IN A GOOD-SIZED TEAPOT

Governor Ely of Massachusetts has created quite a stir in the conservative old Bay State by nominating Felix Frankfurter, a Jew, to the Supreme Court bench of the State. Gov. Ely is a Democrat, and the Executive Council, the confirming authority, has seven Republicans and one Democrat in its membership.

Felix Frankfurter, like Justice Cardozo of New York, also a Jew, recently appointed to the Supreme Court of the United States, is one of the leading lawyers of the State. At present he is a professor in the Harvard Graduate School of Law. His name was first proposed, we believe, by Justice Holmes, who recently resigned from the Supreme Court Bench of the United States at the advanced age of ninety-one, and endorsed by many other eminent citizens of the state. All the bitterness is aroused in this case that was aroused by the appointment of Justice Brandeis by President Wilson in 1916, and for very much the same reason.

Mr. Frankfurter is a liberal. He is, like Justice Brandeis and Justice Holmes, a Humanist before he is a legalist. The fact that he is a Jew, perhaps, may be offensive to some of the old families who have thought only of Bancrofts, and Blodgetts, and Holmes as deserving a place on the Supreme bench. But Mr. Frankfurter has a passion for justice. He gave offense to the staid old conservative families of the State when he reviewed the case of Sacco and Vanzetti, whose execution became a matter of international concern, and found that there were grave doubts of their guilt. To such, a man like that on the Supreme Bench, is dangerous.

We shall watch this case with interest. The Jewish vote in the East is very large. The Republican Council may find it expedient to confirm the appointment in view of the possible influence in the national election. But conservatism is strong in Massachusetts, and while at present the liberals hold political control in the State, the conservative Council may refuse to confirm. There is no question about Mr. Frankfurter's high character and legal ability, but the charge is being made that his emotional interests are apt to warp his judicial temper. It is generally conceded by those of independent and unprejudiced mind that Mr. Frankfurter would add dignity and ability to the Court.

THE DECLINE IN COMMODITY
PRICES

Commodity prices have now declined to a figure below the prices of 1913. According to one of the financial services of the country, prices will continue to decline for at least ten years more. This prediction is based upon the history of the decline of prices which followed the close of the Civil War. Prices, according to this service, continued to decline for twenty-four years, after the war ended.

This prediction is based upon the assumption that history will repeat itself, a fact not justified at all by the experience of the last fourteen years. This period of depression is not at all running true to form. The forecasters have been all wrong in their forecasts during the period following the war. They have in the main overlooked the changes in economic conditions. If the statistics of one period might serve as a guide for some subsequent period, it would be perfectly safe to forecast the future. But statistics only register results. The results themselves are determined by economic laws and practices which change with the passing years.

We definitely know what it is that arrests the return of prosperity. It is the lack of confidence which has dried up the streams of credit. Banks need only 7 or 8 per cent of the money which they loan to their borrowers. All the rest is credit. When business begins its upturn, and credit is restored, we shall move rapidly toward prosperity. Stocks are low, the millions of the unemployed will be in the market for goods the moment they get back on the job, and when the productive and the distributive machine begins to function we shall move again toward normal. When that will be is not to be answered by examining the statistics of the past.

Therefore, it is not to the forecaster that we must look for the way out, but to those guiding geniuses in the financial and business world who can cause the stream of credit to flow once more. That is the problem stated in its simplest form. What makes the whole situation so problematic is the factor of self-interest or self-preservation which is still so strong in a society made up of human beings. This factor finds little ground in logic. It is more the product of emotionalism.

Oh, Say Can You Sing—
The Christian Science Monitor

Somewhere among the easy-going bills which drift sluggishly through the various channels of the United States Congress, there is a measure designed to make compulsory the ability to sing or recite the national anthem by all officers and employees of the United States and the District of Columbia. The United States needs more "singing in the bathtub" and what more effective way to get it than through the passage of a law compelling not only government workers but all the people to learn to sing "The Star-Spangled Banner." What a symphony of discord would be in prospect when great numbers of persons who do not know a musical note from the bray of a donkey and whose efforts to negotiate the scale sound like a banshee uprising, got together for compulsory practice of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Evidently, though the author of the measure fully recognized the prospective result of trying to make canary birds of bullfrogs and provided a loophole of escape by inserting the words "or recite" into the proposal that "no person shall enter upon any civilian or non-civilian office, position, employment, or enlistment in any branch of service of the United States Government or the government of the District of Columbia unless such person has learned to sing the national anthem from memory."

Invoking the Akron

The scouting value of the giant U. S. airship Akron was painfully deflated last week when a coast guard cutter found a racing ketch that had been lost at sea for two weeks. A long search had been made for the little boat. Navy tug and coast guard boats took part in it. Finally the Akron was called, by special permission of the navy department, and sent scouting over the area in which the small craft had been last reported. The result confirms an earlier suspicion that the air cruiser was used more to comfort anxious relatives than actually to assist in a search. The Akron went out, scouted about—at a cost not specified—and returned without any news. The persistence of the coast guard service finally obtained results.

If the lost ketch had been an enemy submarine, would the Akron have done any better?

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

ESSAY ON POETRY

A novelist lately has written a tale, Which tells of a gifted young bard Whose output of verse became steadily worse Till he looked upon liquor, when hard. But as soon as he took on a strenuous tide From a bottle hard by on a shelf, The rhymes flowed along like the lilt of a song, And he wrote like Lord Byron himself.

His wife, though she feared that the Demon of Drink Her loved one in time might unman, Thought he soon would win fame in the metrical game, And kept constantly rushing the can. Though the risk to his health of the tipple he took Cost the helpmeet full many a moan, "He would better be dead," she undoubtedly said, "Than to persist unwept and unknown."

But, speaking as one who has known quite a few Of the makers of popular song, I can say to this dame that her notion that fame Can be fostered on whiskey is wrong. Ben Jonson and Omar, although they produced Many stanzas that people still quote, Set the bottle aside when their pencils they plied— They never were lit when they wrote.

If the lad had promised her husband a drink When he turned out a rhyme that would sell, He'd have done his dashed best with a tefter and rest, And everything might have gone well. But taking one's tipple before one begins To write what the public will read, To pen a refrain with a fuzz on your brain— That isn't the way to succeed.

Little Benny's
Note Book
by Lee Pape

Pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair and ma said, The nerve of some people is passed belief and incomprehensible. I can't get over the audacity of Sally Jar-din taking my silver handle umbrella home with her from Maud Hewes bridge game yesterday afternoon.

Perhaps it wasn't the silver handle so much as the silk covering of the ribs that intrigued her so strangely, pop said. Umbrellas and books are both public servants. No matter who played for them in the first place, they seem to belong to the person who possesses them at the moment. Umbrellas and books are soldiers in the grate army opposed to the public enemies. Books combat ignorance and stupidity, and umbrellas raise their black banners against roomatism and lumbago and colds in the head, in other words, rain. Just as books give out their golden thawts freely and impartially, so do umbrellas lend their shielding safety to one and all irrespective of class or condition. So everybody feels a personal rite to everybody elses book and umbrella, though the sentiment is slightly irregular from a strictly legal point of view, pop said.

But the worst of it is, it wasn't even raining, because the rain had stopped down to the very last drop, so she hadn't the slightest shadow of an excuse in any sense of the word, ma said. You could have brushed me over with a feather when I discovered that I'd brawt home her umbrella instead of my own, she said.

Well, who was the first to leave, you or she? pop said, and ma said, Well, I was, as a matter of cold fact.

Then ye gods, it was you that took her umbrella, pop said, and ma said, Nobody could call that moth eaten thing an umbrella, and I see no reason why she couldnt of left mine where it was and telephoned to me, instead of dragging it half way to the country, where she lives, and now I don't know when I'll get it back. The nerve of her, ma said.

O rector, pop said. And he got in back of the sporting page and stayed there.

J. C. Metzgar announced his withdrawal from the race for the county clerkship because of the demand for his continued service as secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. This left the field clear for the deputy county clerk, Joe Backs, the only candidate in the field.

Miss Genevieve Finley, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. S. H. Finley, was home from Monmouth college in Illinois, where she graduated in June with high honors.

Mr. and Mrs. William Schenck, former Santa Ana residents, arrived from San Francisco to visit D. N. Kelly, and other friends, and were at the Kelly home in Balboa.

W. A. Cornelius, owner of the Newport Beach News, who had been in the internal revenue department work for several years, received notice of his advancement from income tax inspector to revenue agent.

DON'T TOUCH

The old phrase, "Don't touch," has fallen upon evil days. Used too often and without true purpose, it worked mischief in its day. But it has real value and meaning, too much of both to allow it to pass out of our educational scheme. There are certain things one must not touch. It is well for grownup people to bear them in mind so that the principle involved may color their dealings with the children although they may never use the words.

Beauty ought not to be touched. I am speaking of the beauty that is in all people, in all nature, in art. Beauty must be allowed to go her way, to work her will with us without feeling the hot clutch of hands. At the first approach of the possessive spirit beauty takes wings. A faded withered, dusty trace is upon our hands but beauty has eluded us.

I wish we might teach children that. Not in direct ways. That will never succeed. But through the expression of our own attitudes. If you consider for a moment you will have to agree that the loveliest things of life cannot be touched, cannot be held. We can possess them if we go with open hands, and only so.

We can lose ourselves in the blue of a spring sky and in the forms and colors of the drifting clouds. We possess the bird's song while we listen to it. We are a part of the mysterious midnight sky sprinkled over with beckoning stars. All the glory of earth and sky and sea are ours—but we may not touch them. A hint from on high, if we would but take it. Little children turn to the flowers growing about them and beg to have them in their hands. They want to pick up the puppy and squeeze him against their hearts. They cry for the moon and reach out pleading, praying arms for all the beauty that surrounds them. But they must not touch. They must not crave to possess, to hold, to dominate. That way sorrow lies.

Children must own things. The pup must belong to his master. The flower must lie in the little girl's hand, her own. That is a phase of childish growth. Children must own, but that feeling of possession, of ownership, that mingling of self with the things and the people about us must be held down to its own place lest it crush us. We must possess but never allow our possession to get under the surface of the material self. We must carry our possessions so lightly that we can shed them with a shrug of the shoulder and go forward blithely.

No, I would not have you tell a child this. He must have his child's hour and delight in his toys. I would have you know this so that it colors your attitudes toward the children and toward yourself. You are a free thing, a changing form on the face of the universe. The beauty of you is also the beauty of the intangible thing that cannot be touched. If you know that beauty, if you are a part of that beauty, you hold one thing—the secret of peace in a world of strife. You may lose money, land, material power, but you are free, majestic, dominant. Don't touch.

Uncommon Sense

FAIR WEATHER SAILORS

In the costal waters of most countries the summer seas are dotted with the sails of yachts.

Sneeding before an easy summer breeze, or tacking to and fro is a delightful sport.

To learn to sail a boat in fair weather is easy.

But let a storm arise, and if the majority of yachtsmen haven't a seasoned skipper on board they become not only unhappy but often helpless victims of terror.

All they learned about fair-weather sailing is useless in a blow.

They cannot keep the boat up into the wind while they shorten sail.

Few of them even know how to shorten sail.

The landmarks by which they shaped their courses become obscured by the rain or spray.

They lose their positions, and as a rule haul down sail altogether and rift whither the wind happens to blow them.

Today we find on shore more fair-weather sailors than ever went down to the sea in ships, or even in rowboats.

While everybody had money and was spending it freely, there was no trouble.

Getting and spending were easy.

But now that matters are different they are without resources.

They feel as if they were drifting on a lee shore, which many of them are.

They are excited and terrified, but they don't know what to do.

and they wouldn't know how to do it anyway.

It is fortunate that there are still a good many hard-headed financial mariners who have weathered worse storms than this, and who refuse to let go of the tiller and allow the old craft to drift.

Men of this kind know that in a blow the only thing to do is to keep the head of the boat into the wind and look out for rocks.

What is happening today is merely the bursting of a storm, which has long been brewing.

Compared to some of the cataclysms, which have shaken the old ball, it amounts to little.

The sun still shines after the rain, the earth is still so kind that "just tickle her with a hose and she laughs with a harvest."

The difficulty is with quieting the fears of the fair-weather sailors, and that can and will be done.

It will not be long before nerves stop fluttering so violently, and the fears which, while they did not create, having augmented and prolonged the trouble, will subside.

Maybe when it is all over the lesson of a bitter experience will sink in, and the fair-weather sailors will learn to stand up under rough weather.

But human nature being what it is, I am rather skeptical.

However, the next storm—if it does come—is not likely to arrive in time to bother the present generation.

1,100,000 AMERICANS IN FRANCE

On July 13, 1918, General Peyton C. March announced in Washington that more than 1,100,000 American troops were in France and that more than 700,000 of them were fit for actual combat.

On the western front, French troops continued their "milling" tactics at the German lines and advances were reported in the Longport-Corey area and in the Anthel district southeast of Montdidier.

Greek forces defeated their Bulgarian opponents again in the Balkan campaign and advanced across the Sturma river.

President Wilson was given the right to take over the telegraph lines in the United States for the duration of the war.

SPELLBOUND

They were discussing the new typist.

"What do you think of her?" asked the manager. "How is she doing her work?"

"Well, I don't know," the chief clerk replied. "But she spells atrociously."

"Really," said the manager, "she must be pretty good. I'm sure I couldn't spell it"—TIT-BITS.

BRIDEGROOM: Now that we are married, perhaps I might venture to point out just one or two of your defects.

BRIDE: Don't bother, dear. I'm quite aware of them. It was those defects which prevented me from getting a much better man than you are.—ANSWERS.
